CONGRATS TO THE BOLINAS WOMEN ON ANOTHER TUG OF WAR VICTORY--

READING TO JOHN

On Tues. 7/21 I'll share a folk tale from Central Asia, "The Magic Spring." I told this recently in Fairfax and find it haunting. No such thing as eternal youth—right? Not necessarily... And I'll finish up with reviews.

JULY

THE MOST HAPPY FELLA PRESENTED BY THE WEST MARIN PLAYERS

West Marin Players is making a departure this year and producing Frank Loesser's beloved musical of 1956. Set in the Napa Valley around 1927, it is the story of a May-December romance where an older grape rancher knows what he wants and woos in letters a young waitress. This is not a smooth path to happily-ever-after but the barriers are surmounted. In the end it is a soaring love story with some sublime music and amusing secondary characters to suit everyone's taste. Many players from our previous productions return to bring us a wonderful song filled evening. Don't miss this perennially sold out summer event. OPENING NIGHT DINNER & SHOW: An evening of memorable theater, wine, and tasty food, this is definitely one not to miss. Gala admission gets you wine and appetizers, dinner, dessert and admission tickets with preferred seating. You'll have a great time and provide much-appreciated support to the local theater arts.

Friday & Saturday, July 10 & 11, 8 PM

Sunday, July 12, 2 PM

$30 general, $28 seniors & kids

Opening Night Dinner & Show 6 PM, $85

Includes reserved seats for show and dinner.

Recipe

in a bowl deep and smooth and dark stir a milky swirl of stars
slowly pare in one whole moon
set aside to rest

in a separate bowl
strain a fresh sun through a sieve of fir trees
sprinkle with birdsong and silence
allow to rise

fold night and day alternately
into a small cabin in the woods
gradually alter seasoning

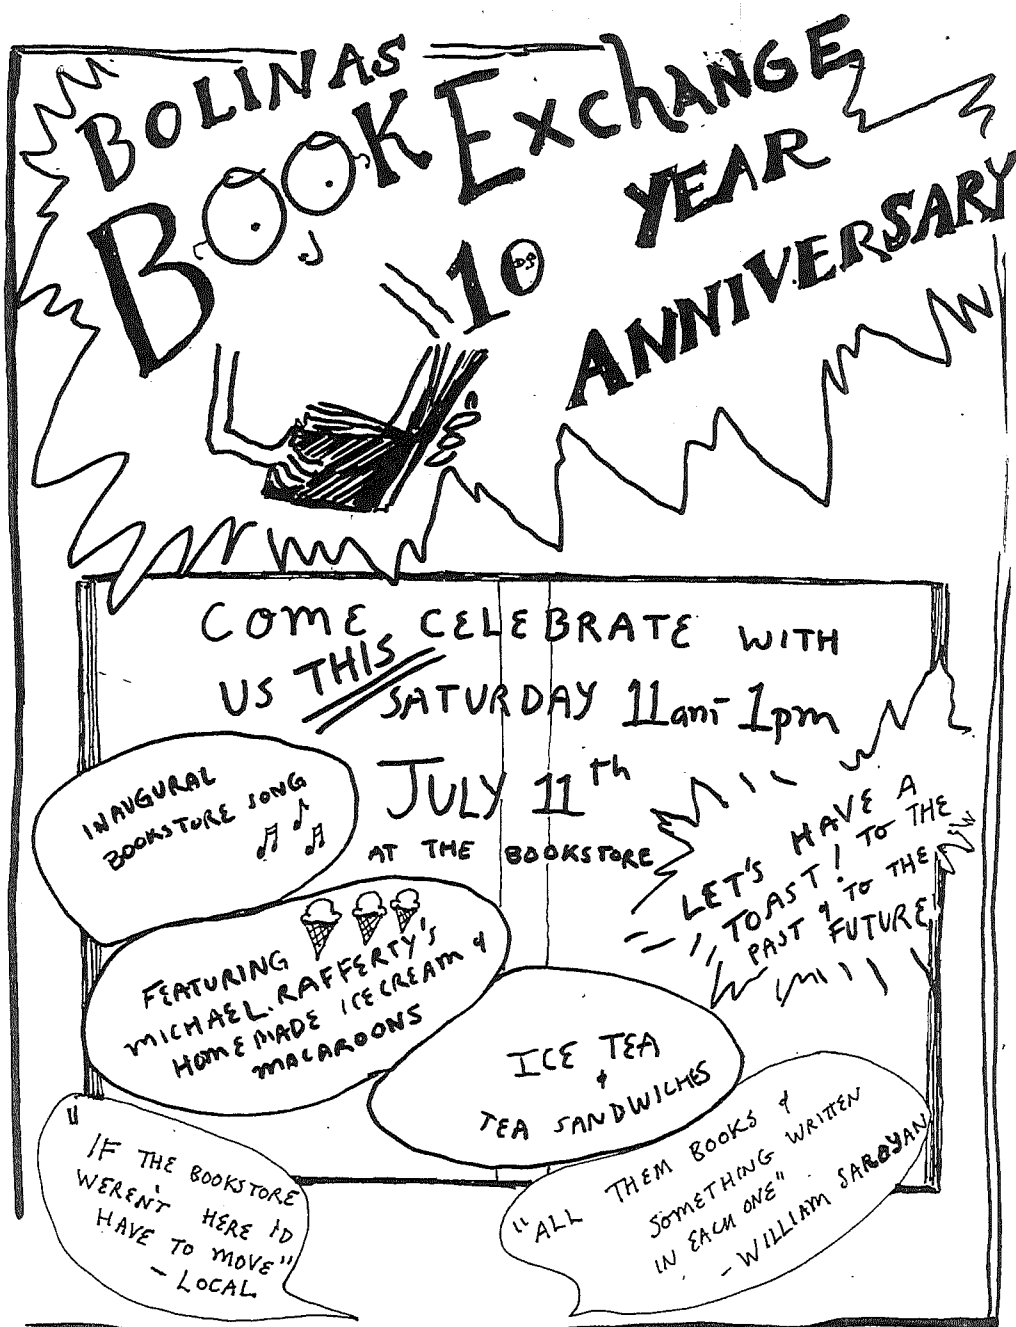

combine neighbours and friends
sift in a million small kindnesses
until a community blooms

place in a misnamed ocean
at 49 degrees latitude and 124 degrees longitude

you will know it is done when a light tap anywhere on the surface yields the word home
or when a woman inserted into the middle comes out muddy and grateful

Supreme San Francisco values: Rights, not privileges

By David Smith and Steve Heilig on July 5, 2015

When the Supreme Court ruled in favor of the Affordable Care Act or "Obamacare," top White House and federal health officials held a meeting to reflect on what that means. One striking thing they noted was that this decision confirmed that "health care is a right, not a privilege."

And why was this so notable? That was the founding slogan of the Haight-Ashbury Free Medical Clinic in 1967.

That fabled "summer of love" was a long time ago, but some of the values of that era do not seem so radical now as they did then. The environment needs protecting from ourselves. Healthcare should not be available only to those who can pay for it. Women are equal to men and should have control over their reproductive and other health. Racism is an outdated scourge. Our diets matter, and the less meat we eat, the better for all concerned. Marijuana is not something that should lead to prison. Some illegal drugs might even, if judiciously used, help people. War is bad, meaning, peace is good. Communal living may yet be a necessary movement. And while "All You Need is Love" might be stretching things, as the second momentous Supreme Court decision last week showed, real love should not be prohibited but encouraged. As even the Pope has noted, who are we to judge?

We are not blind '60s apologists — there were many problems then. But the mainstreaming of ideas from that era continues. The ACA is far from perfect, but "the perfect is the enemy of the good." Getting it adopted involved many compromises. But millions of Americans now have access to care, and there are many good new ACA elements — mandated contraception, addiction treatment, preventive services and more. Overall health costs appear to be less than they would be without the ACA. Implementing and fine-tuning it is a hugely complex ongoing task — as with Medicare and Medicaid, health programs established in the '60s out of the spirit of solidarity with those most in need.

A mentor to us both, Dr. Philip R. Lee, served as U.S. Assistant Secretary of Health and Chancellor of UC San Francisco in the 1960s. Bullets were fired through his window at UCSF while he was seeking to integrate that campus. He has repeatedly reminded us that progress often takes decades, even lifetimes. Phil is now in his 90s, but he recently reflected "We may not always be listened to, or be as influential as we might wish, but we just keep on trying."

"San Francisco values" have been both lauded and reviled through the years. Some people will never agree with them. But compassion and equality are timeless goals enshrined in the founding documents of our nation, revived in many ways in the "City of Saint Francis" a half century ago. And when even the United States Supreme Court endorses such movements, to us it seems that, yes, in many ways, the hippies indeed got it right.

David Smith is a graduate of UCSF medical school, founder of the Haight Ashbury Free Medical Clinic, a past president of the American Society of Addiction Medicine, and recipient of the UC Berkeley Haas Public Service Award. Steve Heilig is a 33-year San Francisco resident, co-editor of the Cambridge Quarterly of Healthcare Ethics and policy director of the San Francisco Medical Society, and recipient of the California Medical Association's Sparks award for contributions to public health.
