El Presidente Wants You!

Join us in play on this Labor Day

The Community Center needs you to participate in Labor Day. When I say Labor Day I am referring to the annual street dance, barbecue and silent auction that happens every year in the middle of Wharf Road on the first Monday of September. And when I say Labor, I'm not talking about work, I'm speaking about joyful participation in community. Labor Day is a party for the town

Labor Day is a major fundraiser for the Community Center. It's a great way to join with the community of Bolinas and show support for the Community Center. There are many ways to get involved:

- Donate items to the Silent Auction, a marvelous opportunity to move along some of your stuff that is not quite trash, more like treasure. Think of the white elephants that you have around the house that would make charming additions to the Silent Auction. Call 868-2128.

- Bake desserts for the dessert table.

- Volunteer at the event. There's lots of ways to help. Call 868-2128.

- Dance in the middle of Wharf Road. Take back the street from the automobile, if only for a moment.

Labor Day is an important expression of the community of Bolinas. You get what you give.

We need your help to portray our town in the most beautiful way possible.

Come join us in play on this Labor Day.

Thank you.

— El Presidente (StuArt)

Expatriate Post: Dispatch to Boboland from a Small Town near Greece – V

Bethany Coleman-Atherton
Monday 15 August 2011

The ancient Romans were my kind of people. Apart from their proclivity for prime real estate around the Mediterranean, they were thoroughly preoccupied with making tasty things such as wine, olive oil and fermented fish sauce. They also very kindly mass-produced pottery such as amphorae for me to find in the sea covered in barnacles and other decorative elements. When I get tired of looking for ancient Roman artifacts, I can always retire to my kitchen and, because of Roman industry, appreciate a bowl of pasta made from Roman durum wheat.

Unfortunately, our prudish society never incorporated the concept of public toilets as once enjoyed during the Golden Age of Rome. Imagine buying the morning paper and a piping hot caffe latte and sitting with your friends and acquaintances in the public square on cool, marble potties arranged in bench fashion. Cool, fresh spring water washed away any disagreeable waste while you smoked and joked and caught up on the latest hearsay.

Then there were those Gods of Liberty, those free agents found in the temples lying around the sacred altars and traveling with the Roman army on their jaunts to exotic locales: cats.

The neighboring hegemony, the Greek empire (where I happen to be vacationing), was not as fond of those discerning citizens with sharp, pointy claws, but they did appreciate a cat's appetite for the succulent rodent community. One particular neighbor, that chronicler and comic playwright of ancient Athens, Aristophanes, nailed it in a nutshell in 420 BC: "Are you going to talk of cats and rats among high-class people?" Aristophanes even includes them on a grocery list with foxes, moles and water rats.

Despite this ancient impudence, there are a lot of cats in Greece. The guide book for Naxos says: "When you get out of the ship, you meet a town full of fruits and potatoes..." (sic) There is no mention of cats (or cab drivers for that matter). On a general basis, I find cats more useful than potatoes. Especially Greek cats because they are seriously clairvoyant. On Naxos Island, the cats have penetrating green eyes (many have a green eye and a blue eye) and are capable of turning the most resolute cynic into a believer of trans-temporal activity with a third eye thrown in for good measure. ESP, better known as enis-P amongst my contemporaries, is a given amongst the Greek cat population.

The scientific community confirms a veritable soup in the vicinity of genetic eye color determination; a mélange of SNPs within OCA2 gives us gene polymorphism (in other words, mutation) skulking around chromosome 19.

The Greek pussycats with the mixed iris thing happening are demonstrating complete heterochromia. Alexander the Great was heterochromic, amongst other things. What the scientific community doesn't tell us about these color combining folk is that they are pretty savvy top dog telepathic types. They conquer the known world by the age of 32, they tend to have multiple partners, they are extremely suspicious (read paranoid), can have up to a hundred kittens and can sense the presence of Greek meatballs in the middle of the Aegean.

Bolinas, and particularly 52 Terrace Avenue, was also known for its psychic cat community. They all ended up at this address which was a veritable parapsychology commune. They knew they would escape castration, would always find the remains of Cioppino and the errant slice of boiled cow's tongue, could mark their territory at will and could rest assured that the only known predators were fat, naïve puppies without a single psychic brain amongst them. These cats made the proprietors feel like gurus when in fact it was the cats who ruled the roost. Once, I accidentally disturbed a cat who was in the middle of an intensely psychic moment - she sensed the arrival of kibble-consuming rascals. Her reaction was to place herself on my head like a hat with jaws attached. It was a good thing she had nine lives. Her psychic powers told her to lay low under my mother's bed for the duration.

At land's end Naxos, otherwise known as Lionas Bay, where no man ventures except by accident, we found the only taverna, or rather, it found us. The young proprietress waved to us from her porch wearing a flame red blouse. "Pame, pame, come, come, we have octopuses and ball meats." We did indeed order fresh shrimps with many cheese and ball meats made by her mother and waited for some cool water to slake our thirst. The cyber-psychic network broadcasted the news and within seconds we were surrounded by unblinking cats. Their mouths opened and with extra-sensory acuity, they demanded repeatedly that we share what would be a copious meal. It was, indeed, copious and we shared as directed.

When I retire, I will become a gattara, one of the old ladies dressed in black who feeds the stray cats amongst the ruins of great empires. I'm also gonna ask that blue and green eyed cat I saw up in Engares village for the winning lottery numbers.

NOTICE

The following stuff was taken from the back of the Community Center. Please return:

- Large metal industrial shelving unit.
- Mini stem cleaner with attachments in box
- Various bottles of cleaning fluids and window cleaner, simple green, etc.
- Spray bottles, rubber cleaning gloves, dust pans and brooms, cobwebber, toilet bowl brush
- These items were mistakenly left outside the Community Center for a brief time and were not surplus.

Thank you.

A TRAGIC/COMIC MUSICAL REVUE

BY DALE POLISSAR

Dynamite Singers! Dynamite Songs!

READING TO JOHN

On Tues. 8/30 at 10 am on KWMR (89.9) I'll read "Untitled" by Molly Giles. Ellen teaches creative writing but this is her last semester. (Budget problems.) Her students are a mixed bag, her personal life is on the skids. A bitter-sweet short story, laced with humor and some pathos. I'll finish up with some reviews and/or a folktale or two.

Dear Community Members:

The first day of school is Wednesday, August 24. School is back in session! School commute times are between 7:15 and 4:40.

While driving on the roads and in front of both the Stinson Beach and Bolinas campuses, PLEASE watch out for the children. They will be walking, riding bikes and waiting at their bus stops. The speed limit on most of our local roads is 25 MPH including in front of the schools.

Included in our current enrollment are 16 Kindergarteners. This is a new and exciting time for them.

PLEASE DRIVE CAREFULLY

When the bus stops at a bus stop and its upper red lights are flashing, ALWAYS stop until the flashing light ceases. State law mandates a flashing red light whenever students are entering or exiting a bus.

Anyone passing a bus on either side of the road when its red lights are flashing will be subject to a large traffic fine and/or other means designated by the California Highway Patrol.

Thank you,

The Bolinas-Stinson Union School District

Uniquities Exchange & REALLY GOOD PET FOOD Emporium is a community endeavor, offering many ways to participate:

1. Come on in to enjoy Llewellyn Ludlow's beautiful land and sea scapes in the Uniquities Salon Gallery, on display until the 2nd weekend in September, noon to 5:00 daily. (You can call 0144 to get on the list to exhibit your art.)
2. Get your hair done by calling Phillipa for an appointment, 259-8277, or use the Salon chair for $20 a day if you are a hair cutter looking for a place to cut hair. Call 8886 or 0144 to reserve.
3. Use the Uniquities Studio Work Space to teach a class or work on a project, for $20 a day. 868-8886 or 0144 to reserve time.
4. Visit the store, noon to 5:00 daily to shop or swap for art, artifacts, antiques, collectibles, thrifty items and really good pet food.
5. Buy a BoBo Burrito from Max when you see his cheery umbrella burrito cart.
6. Join our collective by sharing the rent plus a weekly 5 hour time committment. Questions? 868-8886 or 0144.
7. Participate in the "2nd Sunday" monthly market and rummage sale at BRIGHTON SQUARE, 11:00 to 3:00, by shopping, swapping, or bringing your items to sell, (fee for space is by donation.) 868-8886 or 0144.
8. You may donate moderately sized reusable items by checking in the store, noon - 5:00.

We are located next to the Post Office and behind the Bookstore. Contact Michael Rafferty, June McAdams, Howard Dillon, Jenny Pfeiffer for questions, suggestions or other ideas for participating - the more the merrier.

To Play or Work is Not the Question

To cavort on Labor Day is in my opinion an inalienable right and a sweet way to celebrate the most palpable shift in season and mood. We truly will be moving into the fall with its distinct imperatives--and leaving behind, however reluctantly, the summer ways. Our Town Party with its benefit for the Bolinas Community Center has always felt like that to me. And it is a sweet thing to acknowledge this Change collectively.

Here's the paradox: It's Labor Day and it's Play Day. Yes, it'll take some labor and care to pull off a grand party. And to help a little makes it a lighter and more joyful day for us all. The subtle excitement of doing a few tasks that benefit a more general interest--the Community Center---rather than the necessary self interests that we must pursue daily to survive and thrive--that can Feel Good!

I urge you to join us, to volunteer at the bar, the barbecue, the silent auction, the clean-up, so called green team, the traffic barriers, the dessert table, set up and take down of stuff---and very important to relinquish some curious commodity or to offer useful/entertaining service that can be part of the Silent Auction.

When we all spread our wings we can fly! The musics, the food, the friends ---this is gonna be great. Don't miss this DAY.

Your BCC Operative Jan Broek -

RENT A PAINTING:
ENHANCE YOUR LIFE!

Do you have empty space on your walls? For instance, over your couch, or above the fireplace? How about in the master bedroom, or up the hall stairs, or down the hall stairs?--an empty space just begging for a stunning painting that will enliven your home, stimulate dinner party conversation, titillate beautiful women, calm crying babies and subdue barking dogs?

For a low, low monthly rental you can fill your home with splashes of radiant color or subtle fog scapes--hmmm...forget that, too much fog outside--on second thought how about about a cheery sunny beach scene, or the clash and clang of boats in the harbor.

All this is available for one weekend only at the Bolinas Gallery --your neighborhood Paint a Dream Come True Store...or, "I paint'em, you hang'em".

In case you don't know, this is National Enhance Your Life Week... end.

Definitely time to do it. I'll even throw in the frames.

From Vi@kisa: My guests on Coastal Airwaves Wed. the 31 of August 4 to 5 pm will be Beso Negros Cheyenne Young the bass player from Inverness and Javier Jimenez the guitar player from Madrid..

I really like this band and am looking forward to talking with them.

Beso Negro has an all-star lineup of internationally experienced musicians who have brought drive and passion to Gypsy Jazz. Taking the hint dropped by the likes of The Pogues, Gogol Bordello and Flogging Molly, Beso Negro has transformed a genre into a vibrant new beast. Darker, faster, more danceable, more blues, more Gypsy, Beso Negro's indelible fingerprint brings Jazz Manouche to a new generation and to the 21st century. Javier Jimenez of Madrid adroitly conjures the ghost of Django with his phenomenal guitar playing. Adam Roach's vocals are singular, soulful and penetrating. Steve Gardner's fiddle playing is fluid and dark. Cheyenne's Bass drives the beat hard. One night with Beso Negro and you will understand what it means to get the "Black Kiss".

By the way if you haven't seen the Box Show yet at Gallery Route One you are in for a treat. Please do not miss it and beat yourself up later. Busy times but this is a great family art experience and it is free unless you have to bid on a box. The show ends Sept. 18th with a great party 2 to 3 and live bidding on contested boxes 3 pm. I am taking down my show at the Book depot Aug. 31 so stop in or go to the Tomales deli + café at 27000 Shoreline Hwy (which is the same as hwy 1) Tomales CA 94971 and you can see my work there Tues the 13 of Aug. till October 31.

Yes, I know I am quite beautiful. But don't be deceived. I'm not the type to stay home to be pampered and petted all day. No. My idea of a good time is to run around the Mesa from dawn 'til dusk and return in the evening with my secret adventures. I'm strong and healthy and have had all of my shots. Haven't been sick a day in my life. I grew up with dogs—so they're my pals. The only things I can't handle are coyotes, and my human moved to a place surrounded by them! Can you help a lady out with a place to live? I'm sweet as can be, easy to live with, and did I mention I'm gorgeous?
