WHAT HAPPENED
Monday Morning Recap

1-22-18 Week in Review from Jenniepfeiffer

Here we are already to the fourth week of the new year, which always seems to arrive so shockingly fast. I better quickly get the rest of my New Year greeting cards mailed.

Another startling realization is that it's been a year since the inauguration of what I call the bogus POTUS. No matter what one's party affiliation, one would be hard pressed to imagine a more un-presidential President. It was an inspiring boost, Saturday, to join the other 90 to 100 thousand people in San Francisco (and 100's and 100's of thousands in cities around the country and world), out in the street "Fired up, ready to go", reminding each other that we can do better than this as a country, and that our children deserve a future better than what is being presented to them from this administration. It was all very moving. The women's movement is moving forward, is alive, vital, and ready to resist the disrespect that pours from the Whitehouse on a seemingly daily basis. Our planet, the people and the creatures living on it, cannot survive three more years of such wanton disregard for environmental science, such diplomatic disarray, and such disregard for rights of "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." We ALL require kindness and respect, along with clean air to breathe, clean water to drink, healthy food, safe living quarters, and a free, quality education for every child of every ethnicity, color, gender (specific or non-specific), culture, and socio-economic happenstance. It is beyond belief that it is still necessary to articulate this. To the people in powerful positions that for some reason can't see beyond their own needy egos, I echo the sentiments of all those strong resister sisters in the street Saturday, (and the men who stood with them), and say "YOUR TIME IS UP!" The predators need to be impeached or voted out of office. Getting people registered to vote is priority #1.

This brings me to another event of the week: Wednesday's Joint Legislative Advisory Committee (JLAC), annual trip to Sacramento. JLAC is a countywide committee of superintendents and elected school board members advocating on behalf of public school children in Marin County. I took advantage of the opportunity to speak to policy advocates and lawmakers about the possibility of schools providing automatic voter registration as students turn 18. If they are registered as absentee voters, they would get their ballots mailed to them no matter where they might go to college or travel and it could set up a lifelong voting habit. I also brought up the need for greater District connection with home-schooled students and their families. This year's JLAC priorities included: Pension liabilities and the related increased school funding costs; special education; school construction and modernization funding bonds; and the need for charter school transparency legislation, requiring that the Brown Act, the Public Records Act, the Political Reform Act, and Government Codes apply to charter schools to hold them to high standards of governance.

This morning, our District Board of Trustees will be meeting to work on our Strategic Plan and I'm looking forward to some in depth conversation regarding the District/Home- school connection, among other things.

Added to these events of the past busy week, were several excellent art openings at the museum and the Farmstand, and some spaghetti BINGO Saturday night at the Community Center, where a raucous full house had fun and raised funds for our beloved Bolinas Children's Center. The good time was kept moving along apace by caller Nate Siedman, who was at one time an outstanding Children's Center attendee, then a parent of an attendee, and now has become president of our school district's Board of Trustees with a calling for calling, or something like that. Thanks everyone for your community activism and generosity.

From VICKISA MARCH IN SF

I did have a really good experience and it was fun always to hang out with Jean Bolte and her Melania Liberty that made it to SF Gate as one of the best. There was so much going on that actually I didn't really get to relate .

MillValleyCAN can and their bus was comfy and got in and out. I ended up with my friend Martha Ryan who created the Homeless Prenatal Program I was having people sign a petitions to mitigate homelessness and for arts organizations and people that are homeless, it was a thing it was a good thing and I know that. She's always doing something good and I might as well do that while I'm there so I was doing that quite a bit. I didn't hear any of the speeches it was just too much happening. You know I'm visual anyway but unless you were really close you couldn't really hear what they were saying. I was walking quite a bit. I ended up going back on the early bus which was great because I got to go to the art store and get stuff for my teaching on Monday and so I don't have to go over the hill today and now I Learned a lot about what was going on and saw some wonderful people honestly it was very inspiring and there was a great group that was making posters and giving them away and they were gorgeous so all in all glad I went. Wish you were there

Outdoor lighting impacts

I am writing to create awareness of the downside of outdoor lighting and minimizing our impact on nature. Most of us live out here because we love the outdoor environment. My husband and I love to walk at night, especially when the moon is out, but we are seeing more intensely bright spotlights shining all the way across the road. They are blinding to us, and surely are affecting our beloved wild creatures.

I encourage everyone to read these links and go outside and assess the lighting around your home: lampsexpo.com/blog/understanding-light-pollution-its-environmental-impact-and-human-health-implications/, cescos.fau.edu/observatory/lightpol-environ.html, motherearthnews.com/nature-and-environment/light-pollution-from-outdoor-lighting-zmaz01djzgoe.

Is your lighting necessary? Could it be angled differently? Are you using LED lights? Yellow lighting is better. It affects our circadian rhythms as well. Thanks, for helping to preserve the natural world.

Wonderful Opportunity!

Hi Friends and Neighbors,

Many of you have been long time anti-nuclear activists. But have you had a briefing lately of what's up?

We're blessed to have our long time mentor and national nuclear expert, Diane D'Arrigo here for a visit.

Please join us for a short overview of the national nuclear situation, focusing on the deadly waste. Current government and industry plans if not stopped, would place us all at increased risk from leaks and transportation catastrophes.

Because many aged nuclear reactors built during the 70's and 80's are now shutting down due to public pressure, market forces and deterioration, thousands of tons of radioactivity will also be entering the waste stream in various ways.

Learn how we can insist on sane management and avoid radioactivity on our roads, rails, waters and in our zippers, pots and pans and furniture.

We'll be in a cozy home for the talk. Please RSVP for location. Space is limited.

Wednesday, Jan. 24, 2018
6 to 8 pm.
RSVP - 868-1900. Mary Beth Brangan, EON

Do you work from home? Do you sometimes want to bounce an idea around? Wouldn't it be nice to have actual human energy around you? Brush your teeth and come on down!

Hi,
 I had an ad' about a "lost" cat in last Wednesdays' paper.
 Please update:
 "Found" beautiful young kitty, she is gold with black stripes, big fluffy black tail. Had to call 'Friends of Feral's"; I'll have to set a trap to get her relocated/adopted.
 They will get her to good health; spay or neutered if it's a he. Hoping to adopt her out here in west marin.
 She is tame and sweet.
 Please call me before I go through trapping her if you want a cat with a great attitude. She's calmer now and sociable with other cats.

THREE GREAT THINGS ABOUT THIS PLACE...

- Spring blossoms are progressing — the plants got pretty confused during all that December sunshine, but now the acacias and camellias are out. Next up: plum blossoms!
- Cannelini beans, aka white kidneys. What a flavorful change from pintos and blacks. The People's store has them in bulk.
- Spaghetti Bingo. A great comfort-food meal in great company, for a worthy cause. Win, win, win.
