A new choir taught by Sarah Cane, who leads singing classes at Inverness School.

Singing in a choir is a wonderful way for kids to begin their musical training. There are a multitude of benefits, helping them to develop musically, socially, and intellectually. We will begin to read and write music, and sing in harmony with new friends. Our rehearsals will be part vocal training, part musicianship, part games, part rehearsing pieces, and maybe even a little dancing thrown in. All elementary school ages welcome. Come sing with us! Contact Debbie Daly at Sound Orchard (415) 663-5018 for more information and register on-line at soundorchard.com.

Items from Terry Bell's Memorial

Thank you to all who came to Terry's memorial to honor his memory. We were deeply touched by the wonderful comments, the fabulous food that many brought and the love that filled the Rod & Boat Club.

Many left plates, dishes and utensils at the event which are now at the hardware store. Please stop by to pick up your items!

Thanks so much again.

Do you have space on your lot for a second unit or even a yurt?

Periodically people ask the BCLT if we know of places where they might be able to build, put up a yurt or even park an RV. While we can't facilitate such agreements between individuals, we are happy to connect people who may want to figure out agreements themselves. Let us know if you have space you would be willing to rent and share.

Thank you.

Nature Notebook By Loretta Farley

The autumnal equinox on Friday, Sept. 22 notes the calendar beginning of fall in the northern hemisphere. It is called "Mabon" in the Celtic calendar, and is a time to celebrate the harvest and to rest after the busy summer season. The coming full moon on Oct. 4 will be this year's "harvest moon," or the full moon closest to the fall equinox.

Bigleaf maples are turning color; they are brilliant gold among the deep evergreen coast redwoods of Samuel P. Taylor State Park along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. Look closely at the crimson poison oak vines for fat clusters of white berries that provide winter food to song birds. Plenty of green oak acorns are falling to the ground and drawing in black-tailed deer, which will feast on them.

Coveys of quail are also taking advantage of the end-of-summer bounty of seeds. Typically, quail pairs lay 12 to 15 eggs in a ground nest. They have an expandable pouch in their neck—called a crop—to store hard seeds, which are then processed through a muscular stomach area called a gizzard. If disturbed, they run quickly for shelter, storing food to digest later. A male quail usually perches like a sentry on a high branch or post above the feeding covey, ready to give an alert if a predator is spotted.

Some Ways to Stay Safe

Taking a lesson from the drastic situation in Puerto Rico and other islands devastated by recent hurricanes, here are some important steps we all should consider.

In case of an earthquake, fire or flood that shuts off power, have a solar flashlight. No batteries to run low. There are many models that you can find on-line. I have one called Waka Waka that is designed to be used in places where there is no electricity. Every time you buy one, another is donated to such an area of the world. You put the flashlight in the window each day to charge its solar panel. I use mine every night for walking in the dark or emergencies. The cost for a Waka Waka is $30. There are other solar powered flashlights that are somewhat less expensive.

It's also important to have a radio to hear the news, and a way to charge your cell phone. There are several solar powered radios that also have a hand cranked system that allows you to charge your phone. On the website Emergency Essentials there is a radio called Kalto Black Voyager Pro that has emergency radio alerts, a solar panel, a hand crank and a USB outlet that powers cell phones. The cost is $80. There are less expensive models on line elsewhere - be sure to check the cell phone charging capability.

You will need half a gallon of drinking water per person daily. We should all have at least a gallon a day per person for drinking and sanitation. Have enough for 5-7 days. If you have rain water stored in a barrel, do not take it off the top, but drain it from the bottom if possible. Filter it through a cotton bandana and then purify it with boiling for one minute or with a water purifier such as Potable Aqua or Aquamira.

Keep enough dried or canned food on hand for your family. I suggest the salt free organic canned beans sold at the People's store as well as the food your family really likes. Let's hope we don't need any of this. In a future column, I will interview our fire chief Anita Brown about how to stay safe in your house or car during an earthquake.

THREE GREAT THINGS ABOUT THIS PLACE..

- Terry Bell. He graced our lives for too short a time. Great gathering Saturday at the Rod & Boat Club—all those old pictures!
- Jeff Manson's record release party last night. The new generation of Bolinas incomers were out in force, with a whole new crop of babies and toddlers. Nice to see.
- Having your neighbor give you a home-grown, vine-ripened heirloom tomato, one of the great blessings of the season. --Ned Riley

WHAT HAPPENED THIS WEEK

Week in Review Recap from Jennlepfeiffer
10-2-17 Monday Morning Memo

We have slipped into October, that month that catapults us into the whirlwind of fall holidays and events: Yom Kippur, All Saints Day, Halloween, Days of the Dead, Indigenous People's Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving, Hanukkah, Christmas, Kwanzaa, (lots of birthdays in our family), and slams us unto the New Year. I'm NOT READY! There should be another month, or at least a couple more weeks, in between the end of September and the beginning of October.

Well, that's not going to happen, so moving on: this past week was a week of music, meetings, and memorial. Yesterday evening there was another marvelous musical event at the Community Center, Jeff Manson's Wild Form LP release party, with a pre-event eating option, Tacos Oscar, in the Plaza that turned out to be amazingly popular. Getting there Bolinas Time - 15 to 30 minutes after advertised start-up hour of 5:00, didn't work out so well for us. The line was still a half hour long, filled with so many people I've never seen before, which is strange in our small town. There were also many I did know so waiting gave a nice opportunity to catch up with Friends. Sean Hellfritsch opened the inside part of the night with an electronic music and light project called Cool Maritime, then Jeff was joined by Danny Vitali on bass, Charlie Callahan on drums, and Alex Bleeker on electric guitar. Vanessa Waring stepped in to do harmonies on several songs. It was a full on family event with lots of children, unrestrained in their enthusiasm, joining in this full entertainment night.

Saturday was a memorial for long time local Terry Bell. Terry, an accomplished artist and creator of beautiful carvings, humorous designs, and a rubber stamp circus collection among many other creative endeavors, was also a literary scholar and student of Shakespeare. He was a fixture behind the counter at the hardware store for decades, able to help with any question regarding tools and materials and the best way to solve a problem. His memorial gathering was an amazing reunion of people from long ago and some from far away, all there to remember and honor Terry Bell. He was my first and always good friend, from arrival on through our long years in Bolinas. He always had a wry smile on the ready for a quirky, witty response to the ironies of life. Such a treasure - so glad he was here, so sad he's left us. Thanks to Karen and Tom Dibblee and all who helped host this celebration of the life of this much loved being and Community member.

Meetings of the week were a Wednesday night group of individuals, under the leadership of Jack Siedman, representing the water district, interested in the Community acquisition of the Wharf Road dock and marine lab, owned by College of Marin. There will be a meeting coming up October 18 at the Firehouse, with a presentation giving further information. Look for more on this as it becomes available.

Friday there was a meeting of the Bolinas Lagoon Advisory Council at Audubon Canyon that had a presentation by Marin County Parks, regarding the Bolinas Lagoon North End Project for flood mitigation and greater environmental health of the Lagoon. The goals of the plan are: road safety, hydrologic connectivity, and ecosystem benefits and services. This would involve reconfiguring the "Wye" and enhancing Lewis Gulch and Wilkins Creeks. Further information can be found at the Marin County Parks website, www.marincountyparks.org.

Stay safe, and no more memorials for awhile please. Jp
