Go to Health: HPV – Who Knew What Else it Could Do?

HPV – the Human Papilloma Virus – has been known for years to be the main cause of cervical cancer in women. There are over 40 types of HPV that are transmitted by direct skin to skin contact during vaginal, anal and oral sex, and most do not cause disease. However, infection with certain viral types, mainly but not exclusively HPV 16 and 18, can cause cervical cancer if not treated. This is why the Pap test is so important for women who are or have been sexually active, with men or with women. The Pap test is a procedure in which cells are scraped from the cervix and looked at under a microscope. The Pap test can detect abnormal cells before they become cancerous, and early treatment in the doctor's office can get rid of the problem. However, some women don't know about the need for regular pelvic exams, or can't afford them. There were 4,200 deaths from cervical cancer in the US last year. Cervical cancer is a very serious problem in developing countries which cannot afford to do Pap screening.

Some subtypes of HPV can also cause cancers of the vulva, penis, anus and the mouth and throat. Sexually transmitted HPV type 16 causes about 85% of anal cancers according to the National Cancer Institute. The risk for anal cancer is much higher in gay and bisexual men than heterosexual men. Women who have anal sex are also at greater risk.

Condoms, which help to prevent pregnancy and HIV/AIDS, can prevent HPV infection by about 70% if used every time. Skin to skin transmission can still occur outside of the condom. Still - condom use is important with new partners. The good news is that most HPV infections are cleared by the immune system in a few years and never cause a problem. However, some people don't clear the virus, and their infections remain.

In recent years there has been an increase of cancers of the throat and base of the tongue, caused by HPV 16. Previously known risk factors for throat cancer included smoking and alcohol, but throat cancers are now seen in younger people who don't smoke or abuse alcohol. Throat cancers from HPV are more commonly seen in men, but women are also affected. Oral sex is considered to be a major predisposing factor.

Since most people do have genital and oral sex, how can we view this threat and deal with it? Prevention and early detection are vitally important. This would include:

- *consistent condom use with new partners, even with oral sex. This may seem unlikely, especially for teenagers trying to do the right thing to avoid pregnancy. However, they should be informed about the problem.
- *Make sure your children get the HPV vaccine, Gardasil or Cervarix – given in 3 shots over 6 months. Both are effective in preventing infections that cause cervical cancer. Gardasil is believed to prevent more HPV types, those that cause cancer of the anus, vulva and vagina. HPV vaccination is recommended by the Centers for Disease Control for 11 and 12 year old girls, and girls and women age 13 through 26 who have not been vaccinated. Gardasil has been found to be safe and effective for males age 9-26. The cost of the vaccine is about $130 per dose - $390 for the series. Most health insurance plans cover the cost, and the Vaccines for Children program may be able to help.
- *Pap tests are still important for women, even if vaccinated, because the vaccines do not prevent about 30% of HPV types that can cause cervical cancer.
- *Being in a faithful relationship with one partner, limiting the number of sex partners, and choosing a partner with few prior sex partners can be helpful. However, it is not always possible to know if a partner or oneself is currently infected with HPV.
- *Early detection of cervical, vaginal, vulvar and anal cancer can be done by regular medical examinations, self exams, and alertness to anything that feels like a persistent sore or abnormal growth.
- *Early detection of cancers of the mouth and throat can be done by regular visits to the dentist and dental hygienist, who should look for abnormalities in the mouth and throat, including hidden areas at the back of the tongue. Everyone should be aware of symptoms such as a persistent sore throat or mouth sore, a feeling of a mass in the throat, a lump in the neck, or difficulty swallowing. Check it out!

Our venerable sage Ben Franklin told us: An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Let's follow his advice.

HERE IS SOMETHING OF INTEREST ON "YES FOR PROPOSITION 31" passed on from the internet:

"Sometimes, you just have to go to a voice of authority. As far as public education goes, it doesn't get much more authoritative than Delaine Eastin, the former California Superintendent of Public Instruction. From 1995 to 2003, Delaine brought a new focus on accountability to the state, cutting waste and classroom sizes, all in the name of better student performance.

Just as she fought to reform our education system, Delaine believes Proposition 31 will bring needed accountability and better performance to our state government.

A California native educated in the UC system, Delaine is part of the bipartisan coalition that has rallied behind Proposition 31 in advance of the November 6th election. Republicans, Democrats, and Independents -- they're all behind this proposition.

Watch our new TV ad with former Superintendent of Public Instruction Delaine Eastin explaining why you should vote "YES" on Proposition 31.

As Delaine says in the ad, accountability is the key to better performance. Watch her ad in support of Proposition 31 today and then share it with friends:

It's Team Spirit ... and more

The Sand Gnats - 2012 season

Team sports build pride and foster cooperation, aid in developing motor skills, grow strong bodies, and provide fun for the children of Bolinas. Parent involvement contributes to the strength of our town community. The softball diamond in Mesa Park is the site of games for beginners on up, and brings families together to cheer the kids along.

Please vote Yes on Measure E to keep the playing fields and their support systems going strong for the next 4 years. For $49 per year per improved parcel (that's less than $1 per week) we can continue to give Bolinas athletes of all ages a safe and healthy place to play.

Funding from Measure E is only for the maintenance of the property at 110 Mesa Road, by the Firehouse. The downtown park is privately funded, and any future swimming pool will be maintained by user fees.

"DIA DE LOS MUERTOS"
Th Nov 1 and Fri Nov 2
Bolinas Community Center

Mirta Guzman is again coordinating the "Dia de los Muertos" honoring and celebration in Bolinas. She does this to maintain the custom of Latin Americans and also to increase understanding and appreciation of Latino culture in the community at large.

Those interested in helping to create the altar will meet at 8am Thursday, Nov 1 in the BCC hall. Photos of those who have passed over are invited along with mementos and flowers.

The hall will be open for the honoring of "Dia de los Angelitos" (remembering children who have died) on Thursday, Nov 1 from 4pm to midnight. The BCC will have pumpkin soup and cornbread and Mexican chocolate available.

On Friday, Nov. 2, "Dia de los Muertos", the BCC will be open from noon to midnight. Mirta is making traditional pozole and Mexican chocolate. This day is not a sad time, but one rather of remembering and rejoicing. Musicians are welcome.

Please join us for any or all of the celebration you can. Information 868-2128.

Monday Morning Recap & Week in Review 10/22/12

From Jenniepeiffer

Our community is full of interesting and outstanding people, any one of whom is capable of saying or doing something that might startle or amaze. There was just such a moment last Monday at the post office. I went in to rescue some mail for my daughter, who has been out of town and missed her P.O. box expiration notice. I had volunteered to pick up her mail, but somehow never remembered to have her key with me on my trips to the post office. When finally getting it on Friday, after closing time, I noticed there was risk of discontinuation of her mail delivery. Nothing to do but wait until Monday morning to see about it. I took the notice with me, but neglected to write down her box number on the notice. As I was standing at the counter, berating myself for my forgetfulness, I heard a box number shouted out from back in the sorting area. It was longtime Bolinas Postal mavin, Sharon Mantle, who, without even turning around to see who was there, called out Adrienne's box number and held up her mail. I was, and remain, in absolute awe. I had only this one box number to keep in my head, but it spilled out on the way from the house to the car, yet Sharon, in the midst of sorting hundreds of pieces of mail with many box numbers, could call it out without a moment's hesitation. Note to self: treat this extraordinary woman with deference - she has a special gift, and I am very thankful she is there to keep our post office running with such competence.

As for other events of the week, Ned and I had a road trip with Miss Kitty the Dog to Southern California, to see Ned's sister in LA. We motored on down to San Diego and got in a great visit with Wayne Trivelpiece (THIS OLD EARTHQUAKE Steve Trivelpiece's dad), though we missed seeing Sue, who was off in Antarctica with the penguins. Wayne and Sue were in Bolinas for several years, about a decade and a half ago, working with PRBO, playing Bolinas soccer, and falling into the BFFL category (that would be Best Friends For Life - texting lingo learned from grandson.) They have recently acquired a retirement home in Dogtown and will be back here ASAP (that's As Soon As Possible - shorthand I learned from my mother, which means I continue to accumulate abbreviations from multiple generations) after their daughter Amy graduates from high school.

In the FWIW department, (For What It's Worth), here's what I'm thinking so far on election choices: for sure "yes" on Obama, Dianne Feinstein, Jared Huffman, and Michael Allen; "yes" on A, strongly "yes" on measure E; strong "yes" on props 30, 31, 34 (death penalty), 35 (human trafficking penalties), 36 (three strikes revise), 37 (label foods), 38 (early childhood), & 39 (clean energy); I guess "yes" on 40 (redistricting); BIG "NO" on 32, & "no" on 33 (anything that allows insurance companies to set prices makes me nervous.)

I need more input on Healthcare District directors. Unless someone I know and trust says differently, I'll probably go with the incumbents.

So I will leave you with one more short text abr. - POR, Press On Regardless, even though this business of campaigning seems to have become overwhelmingly limitless in terms of length of time and $ spent, press on to the polls and be sure to exercise your right and duty to vote. This is a critical year for women to vote. Many Republicans are ready to set women's rights back half a century. I will volunteer to drive anyone needing transport to the Community Center polling place. JP

THREE GREAT THINGS ABOUT THIS PLACE...

- (1) MEASURE E; We really need to be able to maintain the Mesa Park fields. They get a lot of community use.
- (2) The car-size chunk of meteor that exploded over Bolinas last Wednesday. I'm so sorry I missed what by all accounts was a great show.
- (3) Taking a 'quick' trip to LA. Seven or so hours of ugly driving down I-5 gets you there. I'm still getting the fast food out of my system.
