DANCE PALACE PIANO CONCERT: TIEN HSIEH

As one reviewer from the San Francisco Bay Area recently said, "Serious, composed, tiny and full of music, Tien Hsieh lets her artistry on the piano express a warmth and freshness of ideas that surely none but a poet could explain." Another reviewer said she "...delivered electrifying performances of music of monumentally heroic difficulty. Works by Messiaen, Beethoven, and finally Liszt's Rhapsodie Espagnole were breathtaking in their technical quality and interpretive maturity." Her Schumann Humoresque, Op. 20 was described as "Grand, relentless, madness explained, love caught through fingertips and galloping hooves trailing off to pastoral dreams."

VERMONT BOY IN THE GHETTO MY TRUE STORY!

Michael Sommers returns to the Dance Palace with his one man play, Vermont Boy in the Ghetto— My True Story! This show sold out at The Marsh Theater in San Francisco and received a standing ovation! "Two thumbs up- way up."—Tom Donald. Sommers plays 30 characters in this laugh-a-minute comedy of suspense. It is an eyewitness account of race and friendship when a rosy-cheeked Vermonter bumbles into the Ghetto and buys a house. "A triumph! Hilarious, poignant, completely engaging!"—John McConnell.

WHAT HAPPENED
MONDAY MORNING WEEKLY REVIEW
2/24/14 WRAP AND RECAP
from JenniePfeiffer

It was a week of sad loss, with the death of Curt Willig, who has been a member of the community for a very long time. I just noticed a couple of weeks ago, that he was not looking so healthy, and then, so quickly, he was gone. I'll for sure miss seeing him out on his bike, riding around the mesa, or walking the dog out to the cliffs and back. He's been a neighbor for so long. There were some touching photos of him in younger, more vigorous days, with daughter, Erica, and wife Karen, in the annual slide show at the Community Center. It was very moving to see the faces of so many no longer with us. Many photos also of those we see every day, but with a much different look than back in the day. Barbara Kayfetz did a monumental job of putting together the seemingly endless supply of slides, onto a disc, then adding music and presenting the photo documentary of our town. There were lots of photos of the rebuilding of the school in 1980-81, and many years of the Sun Festival. We saw the firehouse with the old fire engines and Fire Chief Jose Silva with his wife and dispatcher Alice, and some nice photos of the following chiefs: Ralph Camiccia, Kevin Hicks, and Anita Terrell Brown. Then there were Bolinas soccer shots from the old days, and a much younger group of players, some of them are still at it - but not so young - every Sunday, since 1974, 40 years, no refs, now joined by kids and grandkids and a whole new group of true believers in the church of Sunday soccer.

Our household lost an Oakland member of our family this week also; the wife of my sister's first husband, who has remained in the family through their kids, my nieces and nephew. In our family once you're in, you're in for life, along with new liaisons and the extended and hyper-extended added family members. The large family gatherings will have an empty spot where Amy should be sitting, quietly giving her acerbic, humorous comments with a ready laugh, making the gathering more of a raucous event. We will be missing her.

I was in Point Reyes on Saturday, to hear the amazing Sim Van der Ryn give a talk about Design for an Empathic World, the title of his latest book. He is quite inspiring. I'm keen on getting his insight and vast experience in architecture and design and how to attempt to live empathetically in the world, for our school's upgrade on the horizon. I like his book's subtitle: Reconnecting to People, Nature, and Self.

So that's the week, Love, loss, and hope for an empathetic future. Press on Regardless,lp

MESA PARK BOARD MEETING
December 9, 2013 7:00 PM
Bolinas Firehouse

Call to Order: 7:02 pm

Members present: Bryan Lee, Dylan Squires (acting President), Jane Mickelson

Others: Angela Calpestri, Angela Vernon, Erica McCrae

Community Expression: Angie Calpestri is now coastal area representative to the Little League, has been attending meetings with them, and has collected information about the field to present to them. [Dylan] I received the budget you put together, and our work plan for Measure A funds is due in a week. We'll send in the rough figures for the field repairs. [Bryan] Where are we now? [Angie] About $2700. We need to get some infield mix every year to fill in. There's a fee to deliver it. Another thing is the signs. We can get the long banner signs that are reasonably priced and easy to put up and take down. I'd like to have one made to see how it looks and then go from there. [Dylan] Put that in the budget. [Angie] There's also the cost of the snack shack, which is very popular. There's a start-up fee of about a couple hundred for buying supplies. [Bryan] I like the idea of having a scholarship fund. [Angie] The more we deal with the field maintenance, the better we can ask the LL to help with that. I think that the Coastal Marin Fund--the folks who make the coins--donates to a non-profit of our choice when we return the coin container, so we can designate it to the Little League toward scholarships. [Erica McCrae] I have a sample of the safer ground cover for putting around the boat in the DT park. It's $20/square foot, installed. For the Mesa Park, it would be $6600 for the wood chips, installed. For the swings and paint, etc. it's between $1750--$2000. That doesn't include the wood surround.

Downtown Park:

[Angela V.] There's been more trash in the park, there's food around from people cooking, the remains of a camp fire, the table's been dragged onto the lawn. We can't do anything until there are ordinances. The edges of the barbeque are eroding because they've never been given a finished seal. The drinking fountains should be cleaned every day. The area behind the bathrooms is cluttered with old pallets and cast offs.

[Dylan] The board should go down and do an assessment of the whole facility. [Jane] What if we could hire an attorney to meet with us, draw up the guidelines, and take them to county counsel? [Bryan] I'll meet with county counsel and talk with them. [Dylan] I'll go to the park and talk with the folks. [Angela] There're still no motion-activated lights on the trees in back. [Dylan] There's enough in the savings for the park to be finished, and in the other account there's enough for maintenance for 2-3 years. By June/July we should have a year and a half of figures to get an idea for a set budget.

[Bryan] I think we should invite Arn to come to the next board meeting to talk with us about the park maintenance and get his perspective on the park.

Action items: Materials for park and up-grades--utility truck, floor sealing coat, improved-functioning toilet, larger toilet paper dispenser, electric hand dryers

Tabled for next meeting.

Maintenance Report: none at present

Irrigation Report: [Bryan] Got an e-mail today that Mary Baum is working on our file at the state level. Jennifer's been in touch with her. The coastal permit came back with a list of data they need, and most of it's ready to go. I went to BPUD and they voted to transfer the water meter up here. I'm working with John Bryant to get the historic usage. Deadline of Jan. 6th for coastal, and it's almost done. I'd like to get the project started sooner than June, but it will be June through October. BPUD will be calling for local contractors to bid on the project.

Treasurer's Report: Light month. We're under budget for DT park and Mesa Park. Tonight I closed the skate park checking account and put it into the MP account.

Action item--procedure for signing checks [tabled for next meeting]

[Dylan] spoke with the county today about what Mesa Park can get from the Measure A funding. They will be meeting on the 17th and have 2 items: naming the districts and then tying that with the distribution. There's an option after 6 months for the districts to get back together and reallocate, but it would have to be totally unanimous. Every counsel member attending the meeting was supportive of Bolinas.

Up-date on election status: Final count was that we were 23 votes over the required 2/3rds majority for passing Measure I.

Other: Action item: Select representative for County Counsel meeting 12/17/13 [not necessary]

Approve Warrants: Does not apply this month

Approve Minutes: Dylan moves, Bryan 2nds. All aye.

Next meeting: Jan. 13, 2014

Meeting adjourned: 8:42 pm

Bolinas-Stinson School Kindergarten Registration

On March 3 the school district will hold our Kinderaarten Registration Day. Parents and children are invited to join us on the Stinson Beach campus at 3805 Hwy One. To be eligible for Kinderaarten enrollment for the 2014-15 school year, children must have reached his or her fifth birthday by September 1, 2014 and for Transitional Kindergarten children must have reached his or her birthday by December 1, 2014.

Transitional Kindergarten is the first year of a two-year Kindergarten program that uses a modified Kindergarten curriculum that is age and developmentally appropriate. Bring a copy of your child's birth certificate and current immunization records. Call the school office at 868-1603 if you have any questions.

Russell Brand on heroin, abstinence and addiction

The only way to help addicts is to treat them not as bad people but as sick people.

The last time I thought about taking heroin was yesterday. I had received 'an inconvenient truth' from a beautiful woman. It wasn't about climate change (I'm not that ecologically switched on). She told me she was pregnant and it wasn't mine.

I had to take immediate action. I put Morrissey on in my car and as I wound my way through the neurotic Hollywood hills my misery burgeoned. Soon I could no longer see where I ended and the pain began. So now I had a choice.

I cannot accurately convey the efficiency of heroin in neutralising pain. It transforms a tight white fist into a gentle brown wave, and from my first inhalation 15 years ago it fumigated my private hell. A bathroom floor in Hackney embraced me like a womb, and now whenever I am dislodged from comfort my focus falls there.

It is ten years since I used drugs or drank alcohol and my life has immeasurably improved. I have a job, a house, a cat, good friendships and generally a bright outlook.

But the price of this is constant vigilance, because the disease of addiction is not rational. Recently, for the purposes of a documentary on this subject, I reviewed some footage of myself smoking heroin. I sit wasted and slumped with an unacceptable haircut against a wall in another Hackney flat (Hackney is starting to seem like part of the problem), inhaling fizzy black snakes of smack off a scrap of crumpled foil. When I saw the tape a month or so ago, what was surprising was that my reaction was not one of gratitude for the positive changes I've experienced. Instead I felt envious of this earlier version of myself, unencumbered by the burden of abstinence. I sat in a suite at the Savoy hotel, in privilege, resenting the woeful ratbag I once was who, for all his problems, had drugs.

That is obviously irrational, but the mentality and behaviour of drug addicts and alcoholics is wholly irrational until you understand that they are completely powerless over their addiction and, unless they have structured help, they have no hope.

This is the reason I have started a fund within Comic Relief called 'Give It Up'. I want to raise awareness of, and money for, abstinence-based recovery. It was Kevin Cahill's idea — he is the bloke who runs Comic Relief. He called me after reading an article I wrote after Amy Winehouse died. Her death had a powerful impact on me, I suppose because it was such an obvious shock, like watching someone for hours through a telescope advance towards you, fist extended with the intention of punching you in the face. Even though I saw it coming, it still hurt when it eventually hit me.

What was so painful about Amy's death is that I know that there is something I could have done. I could have passed on to her the solution that was freely given to me. Don't pick up a drink or drug, one day at a time. It sounds so simple, it actually is simple, but it isn't easy — it requires incredible support and fastidious structuring. Not to mention that the whole infrastructure of abstinence-based recovery is shrouded in necessary secrecy. There are support fellowships that are easy to find and open to anyone who needs them, but they eschew promotion of any kind in order to preserve the purity of their purpose, which is for people with alcoholism and addiction to help one another stay clean and sober.

Without these fellowships I would take drugs. Because even now the condition persists. Drugs and alcohol are not my problem — reality is my problem. Drugs and alcohol are my solution.

If this seems odd to you, it is because you are not an alcoholic or a drug addict. You are likely one of the 90 per cent of people who can drink and use drugs safely. I have friends who can smoke weed, swill gin, even do crack, and then merrily get on with their lives. For me this is not an option. I will relinquish all else to ride that buzz to oblivion. Even if it began as a timid glass of chardonnay on a ponce's yacht, it would end with me necking the bottle, swimming to shore and sprinting to Bethnal Green in search of a crack house.

I looked to drugs and booze to fill up a hole in me. Unchecked, the call of the wild is too strong. I still survey streets for signs of the subterranean escapes that used to provide my sanctuary. I still eye the shuffling subclass of junkies and dealers, invisibly gliding between doorways through the gutters. I see the abundantly wealthy with destitution in their stare. I have a friend so beautiful, so haunted by talent that you can barely look away from her, whose smile is such a treasure that I have often squandered my sanity for a moment in its glow. Her story is so galling that no one would condemn her for her dependency on illegal anaesthesia, but now, even though her life is trying to turn around despite her, even though she has genuine opportunities for a new start, the gutter will not release its prey. The gutter is within.

It is frustrating to love someone with this disease. A friend of mine's brother cannot stop drinking. He gets a few months of sobriety and his family bask, relieved, in the joy of their returned loved one. His life gathers momentum, but then he somehow forgets the price of this freedom, returns to his old way of thinking, picks up a drink and Mr Hyde is back in the saddle. Once more his face is gaunt and hopeless. His family blame themselves and wonder what they could have done differently, racking their minds for a perfect sentiment wrapped up in the perfect sentence, a magic bullet. The fact is, though, that the sufferer must be a willing participant in their own recovery. They must not pick up a drink or drug. Just don't pick it up — that's all.

It is difficult to feel sympathy for these people. Can there be any other disease that renders its victims so unappealing? Would Great Ormond Street be so attractive a cause if its beds were riddled with obnoxious little criminals who had 'brought it on themselves'?

Peter Hitchens is a vocal adversary of mine on this matter. He sees this condition as a matter of choice and the culprits as criminals who should go to prison. I know how he feels. I bet I have to deal with a lot more drug addicts than he does, let's face it, I share my brain with one, and I can tell you first-hand they are total nightmares. Where I differ from Peter is in my belief that, if we regard alcoholics and drug addicts not as bad people but as sick people, then we can help them to get better. By we, I mean other people who have the same problem but have found a way to live drug- and alcohol-free lives. Guided by principles and traditions, a programme has been founded that has worked miracles in millions of lives. Not just the alcoholics and addicts themselves, but their families, their friends and of course society as a whole.

What we want to do with Give It Up is popularise a compassionate perception of drunks and addicts and provide funding for places at treatment centres where they can get clean using these principles. Then, once they are free of drugs and alcohol, to make sure they retain contact with the support that is available to keep them clean.

I wound down the hill in an alien land; Morrissey chanted lonely mantras. The pain accumulated and I began to tell myself the old, old story. I thought of places I could score. Off Santa Monica, there's a homeless man who I know uses gear. I could find him, buy him a bag if he takes me to score.

In my mind, I leave him on the corner, a couple of rocks, a couple of $20 bags pressed into my sweaty palm. I get home, pull out the foil, neatly torn. I break the bottom off a Martell miniature. I make a pipe for the rocks with the bottle, lay a strip of foil on the counter to chase the brown, pause to reflect and regret that I don't know how to fix, only smoke, feeling inferior even in the manner of my using. I see the foil scorch. I hear the crackle from which crack gets its name. I feel the plastic fog hit the back of my yawning throat. Eyes up. Back relaxes. The bottle drops and the greedy bliss eats my pain. There is no girl, there is no tomorrow.

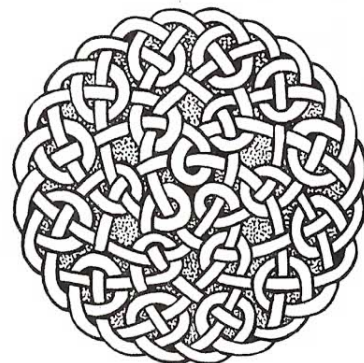

Even as I spin this web I am reaching for my phone. I call someone, not a doctor or a sage, not a mystic or a physician, just a bloke like me — another alcoholic, who I know knows how I feel. The phone rings and I half hope he'll just let it ring out. It's 4a.m. in London. He's asleep, he can't hear the phone, he won't pick up. I indicate left, heading to Santa Monica. The ringing stops, then the dry-mouthed nocturnal mumble:

'Hello. You all right, mate?'

He picked up. And for another day, thank God, I don't have to.
