State of Bolinas Lagoon Conference Set For Feb. 9

The public meeting starts at 7 p.m. at the Stinson Beach Community Center. It will focus on design concepts for the Bolinas Lagoon Project.

By Kristina Houck (Patch Staff) - February 2, 2017 1:00 pm ET

From County of Marin:

MARIN COUNTY, CA – Stewardship of Bolinas Lagoon, a wildlife-rich tidal estuary designated as a wetland area of international importance for nearly 20 years, will be discussed at a public meeting Feb. 9 in Stinson Beach. The annual State of Bolinas Lagoon Conference starts at 7 p.m. at the Stinson Beach Community Center, 32 Belvedere Avenue.

Several studies have been published over the past 10 years to address the restoration of this 1,100-acre jewel of West Marin nature. The estuary, managed by the Marin County Open Space District, is separated from the Pacific Ocean by a narrow and low-lying spit of land on which dozens of Stinson Beach homes are located. About three miles of State Highway 1 (Shoreline Highway) serves as the eastern border of the lagoon, and Olema-Bolinas Road is along the western lagoon waterfront.

This year's conference will focus on draft conceptual design alternatives for the North End Wetland Enhancement and Sea Level Rise Adaptation Project, commonly called the North End Project. In 2013 a scientific review group recommended rehabilitating important wildlife habitats to address years of habitat alteration. A key facet of the project is adaptation to sea level rise and chronic flooding while improving functions of tributary creeks and allowing for gradual expansion of the lagoon's perimeter. Roadway flooding is another component to be addressed while respecting the habitation improvement goal for shoreline birds, waterfowl, and fish, including special-status species such as steelhead and red-legged frog.

Phase I of the North End Project was completed when reconnaissance surveys of existing biological, cultural, and physical resources within the project area were conducted and a summary of the findings was drafted. Representatives from the open space district plan to show three

Theft of Bolinas Museum Waste Removal Bins

Over the past several months, six Bolinas Museum waste removal bins have been stolen from the museum's property. In addition to the museum, three local businesses rely on these bins, which are paid for by the museum. Replacement fees are steep. If anyone has any information about these thefts, please let us know. Bolinas Museum is written clearly on the bins. If you see any bins belonging to the museum, we'd appreciate their return. If the thefts continue to happen, we may be forced to lock the courtyard after business hours. Thanks for keeping and eye out! 415-868-0330.

conceptual designs during the February 9 conference. The Bolinas Lagoon Advisory Council will vote on its preferred alternative later this spring, and then it will go to the Marin County Open Space District Board of Directors for approval, followed by formal California Environmental Quality Act review.

Residents and other interested parties will get a chance to interact with restoration project coordinators, scientists, management staff, and local community representatives. Public input will be welcomed throughout the approval process and environmental review.

The event is being hosted by the Bolinas Lagoon Advisory Council, which works in partnership with Marin County Parks, the Gulf of the Farallones National Marine Sanctuary, the Golden Gate National Recreation Area and Point Reyes National Seashore.

For more about Bolinas Lagoon, visit the webpage devoted to its Ecosystem Restoration Project.

IN THE YELLOW OF THE FLOWERS

In the yellow of the flowers is the yellow of my mother's dress, the smell of her perfume which nauseates me now as never before;
 of an egg yolk, sprinkled with nice salt, sal de mar, that bleeds when you cut into it with a knife, like well, like anything living. In the yellow of the flowers
 I hear the sound of loose gravel crunching underfoot.
 I have guesses as to why, but they are only guesses.
 When did half-listening become more interesting than the story? Bits of language drift in all day like artifacts from a forgotten world:
*You don't look like anyone I know... Matt is all over the map... Residence(residents?)
 against... That's why I got my bitch tatted on me.*
 These shards I remember of yesterday. I have trained myself to find pleasure in the inane, disjointed nature of discourses of strangers. Given the pain narrative sense inevitably brings to human stories, one must smash the urn that chronicles one's life
 and scatter and bury the pieces. Upon rediscovery, one may appraise them individually, at a distance,
 the archeologist of a highly personal history.
 See the yellow of the flowers, see them in either a dream or a memory of a vase I broke as I child insisting I had no part in its falling, it must have fallen on its own.

- Jake Orbison

SHADOWBOXING

I mistook someone on the street for you. I mistook yesterday for the day before. I wrote in my notebook half asleep
 (the lights were off, I can hardly read it) I'm scared when we're not speaking, as we are not now.
 Someone broke into your house on Thanksgiving hoping no one would be home, but you were.
 He left when he realized he wasn't alone.
 The police caught him. Line by line a student traces her finger over the words of a textbook hoping to absorb the information, or maybe to smooth away the ink.
 You think things can't be so simple. I'm saying we don't have a choice.
 We are what patience wrought of us—mountains in full view, horizon.

Yikes!

- Jake Orbison

If you picked up a rocking chair on the corner of Elm and Hawthorne Rd last week, we put the wrong chair out! Please call 868-2227
 or 628-236-9262 to arrange for a trade.

THANK YOU!!

WHAT HAPPENED THIS WEEK 2/6/17 MONDAY MORNING RECAP MEMO Week in Review from Jennie Pfeiffer

Well, in case you weren't paying attention, we have slipped into another month and February is upon us. Unfortunately, those holiday/New Year's greeting cards and letters I never quite got around to, will now have to be Valentines. We celebrated the Chinese New Year, the Year of the Fire Rooster, the second new moon after the Solstice, and after a lovely bit of sunshine, we got back to a week of drippy days with intermittent squalls. The ground is now so saturated the worms are starting to float up above ground, a sad sight to see.
 The frogs are loving it, though, and yesterday as I was riding my bike around the Big Mesa trying to shake loose what Malcolm Boyd so aptly phrased as a "malaise of cynicism and despair", I found the choral cacophony of animated amphibians almost deafening – such unbounded joy.

Not so great for burrowing animals, however. Ground Hog day came around on Thursday, and while there were those sunny places where the ground hog saw his/her shadow, indicating 6 more weeks of winter, other gloomier areas are looking for early spring-like days, which is what the Celtic Imbolc celebration is all about. Then there are places, such as our own prairie areas, where these little creatures have been flooded out altogether, requiring abandoning burrows and moving to higher ground. Also, there are those ground hogs, who are just too afraid to leave the safety of the burrow, after hearing news that the restrictions on mentally compromised individuals buying guns have been lifted and staying hunkered down in ones nest seems the better idea. Works for me, which is why I haven't been getting to the enticing events offered locally this week. I hear Smiley's was packed for Sean Hayes and THIS OLD EARTH QUAKE Saturday night. I hate to miss dancing a waltz or two with TOEQ, but with a full house, there would be no dancing room anyway.

Taking to ones bed in trying times isn't all bad; catching up on books and movies can be an excellent distraction to the daily mind boggling reports on the latest policy roll out of our so-called President. (There was one even worse bit of news from Russia that came out about the new law that makes it legal to beat ones wife – reported just before Super Bowl Sunday the day with the most reported cases of spousal abuse.) I read an excellent article from the New York Times Sunday Magazine, called The Youth Group That Launched a Movement at Standing Rock by Saul Elbein. I recommend it. It's time once again for all of us "Elders" to listen to our young people.

I am definitely planning to leave the burrow next Saturday to attend the big Sweetheart Ball, Food to Table dinner, dance, and silent auction fundraiser for the Stinson Beach Preschool at the Stinson Beach Community Center. It will help. POR jp

THE ASSHOLES KEEP ON COMING

For Donald Trump's Inauguration

(A work in progress--mostly written on inauguration day--started as a poem--became what?--a poetic essay? --you decide!).

By Dale Polissar

And so it comes 'round again:
The sneering bully has his day.

My mother lived to see the time
when Richard Nixon
would get his come-uppance.
She hated that man, and didn't want to die before
she saw him get his due.

In that respect, my mom died satisfied.

But guess what, Mom-- Poor Richard's death
did not seal up
the well from whence they come.

The Assholes keep on coming!

They take a different form each time:
You had the handsome, dignified, oracular
Ronald Reagan.

You had the simple guy next door,
George Bush--with his oh-so-loveable
"Kinda-guy-you'd-like-to-have-
-a-beer-with"-ness

Old Ronny Reagan--
--good pal to those delightful men who savaged the people of Central America.

And loveable George, who
with his good campadre Cheney, started a spate of wars
that will serve the world
a poisonous broth
for decades yet to come.

The Assholes keep on coming.

But this one!--this one perhaps Most dangerous of all:

The Jolly Bully!

Oh, this one, again, some folks find
ree-al loveable!
"He's kinda like you and me!",
they say.

Yeah, kinda like you and me--just Biased and volatile, narcissistic, vengeful, full of himself--yeah,
"Kinda like you and me!"

"He says what he thinks!", they say.

In fact, he says it before he thinks.
In fact, there's often no thought involved at all!

Hell, give him a cheering crowd
and he'll say anything!
(Though it contradict
what he said yesterday.)

And give him a booing crowd,
or a critic--Oh, watch out!--

He will look to get revenge...

Getting even with his detractors-- Yay!, that's one of his great delights!

Yes, Cheering and Revenge
Cheering, jeering, and revenge
are his sustaining diet.

--And Acquisition!--getting Bigger!
(Getting bigger's very big with him.)
More buildings, more hotels,
more money--more, more, more, more!

Big child in grown-up clothing, he Proudly wears the title:
"Business Man"!

He'll give you the business, alright!

Trained by his mentor, Roy-- McCarthy's henchman Roy Cohn--
the slimey, dark Roy Cohn,
a master of the deadly smear-- He'll bring his thumb down hard on anyone who crosses him.
"If they hit ya, hit'm back-- ten times as hard!", said Roy.
Our Donald's venerable mentor.

And this is the man who has his finger upon
the trigger of nuclear war.

Plus, he has gathered around him
a cabal of men
--like High Council on Mount Mordor!-- Whose very heartfelt wish
And very determined action is To bring us back to the "Good Old Days!"--

The good old days when a man was free to dump whatever he wanted wherever he wanted.
The good old days before those nasty labor Unions, and those nuisance
Fair Employment Practices
Muddied the clear waters of Capitalism.

Back to the Good Old Days
when White Men ruled America,
and America ruled the World!

The Assholes keep on coming.

And what are we to do?

Well, here's a reflection that might hold out some modicum of hope:
The very fact that they have come
so many times--
that they have come...and gone!...
can give us courage.

Time and again,
so many fine courageous folks
have stood up to them.

Time and again.

From the barricades of 1848
to the people who circled the Pentagon
--and stopped a war!

From that rabble rouser Thomas Paine
to the rough tough union men,
the miners of Idaho--
and the women of the garment factories

From Spartacus and his rebel slaves to the columns of church-going folks who marched with Martin Luther King...

Over the centuries,
People of courage will keep on Rising to resist.

And now it's our turn.

Resistance is powerful.

Resistance!...is a powerful force!

THREE GREAT THINGS ABOUT THIS PLACE...

- Wow — actually an exciting, entertaining Superbowl.
- The sunsets' annual march back North is underway — sunset is now well North of the Little Farallones. You can see it move a little everyday.
- Speaking of sunsets, during our last patch of clear weather, several flashes of green occurred. They happen (sometimes) just before the sun sinks below the horizon.
