Br. David Steindl-Rast
Common Sense Spirituality

Brother David Steindl-Rast is an 86-year-old Benedictine monk who many consider the successor to Thomas Merton at the intersection of Christianity and Buddhism. More than that, Brother David has developed a "common sense spirituality" that touches the heart of all the great spiritual traditions. He is a self-described "apostle of the spirit of gratefulness." He says his favorite name for God is "Surprise," because "Surprise" is the only name that does not limit the Nameless One. In this interview with Michael Lerner, the continuation of the conversation in February 2012, Brother David returns to The New School for part two of his spiritual biography.

At present, Brother David serves a worldwide Network for Grateful Living, through www.gratefulness.org, an interactive website with several thousand participants daily from more than 240 countries.

RSVPs are required for this event. RSVP online through our website.

Did you know that the Bolinas-Stinson Union School District board is studying possible facilities improvements to the school that would allow the district to include preschools? The board-authorized, 9-person Facilities Needs Committee delivered two proposals to the board on June 5, 2012. You can read the FNC report, study its proposals, read minutes and other documents, and join an online question and discussion forum regarding facilities on the Bolinas-Stinson School homepage: <http://bolinas-stinson.org/fnc/forum>. Please join in the discussion and share your thoughts.

The Board of Trustees
Bolinas Stinson Union School District
Olema Bolinas Rd.
Bolinas, CA 94924

Dear Board Members:

It is hard for me to fully express my dismay at what I hear was a rapid dismissal of the idea (and the necessary financing) for a redesigned and much improved school campus along with the inherent improvements in the education of our children, especially the early childhood possibilities.

As I understand it, the window of opportunity to prepare the communities for the financing package is open until the end of August. If the telephone poll results were as great as I hear WITHOUT ANY information being disseminated by the Board, then it seems easy to imagine what the results could be with a decent educational campaign.

It seems to this parent that you are shirking your duty to the educational needs of our communities' children by not putting a sincere effort into educating the community about the benefits of this plan. The plan proposes greatly improved facilities for the school's much lauded art program. In addition, the Gallery of Arts and Academia would function as a permanent display space for all the school's notable art and academic projects; all on display adjacent to the staged performances in the gym.

As some of you may remember, I used to be opposed to local funds being taxed to fund the financial needs of our school. Some time ago, I realized that I was wrong and now see the only effective funding can come from us, the parents and other community members who care about the education of our children.

I urge you to reconsider your decision and to make an all out effort to educate both communities about the value of this plan. Imagine the excitement that would be generated by the concept and drawings of a gym with a stage at one end for all those wonderful school events that now happen elsewhere.

Sincerely,

Malcolm Ponder

TRIO GARUFA: TANGO SHOW AND WORKSHOP

Trio Garufa is an international ensemble dedicated to performing authentic Argentine music. They have performed across Argentina, Canada and the US (including a recent performance in Chicago Symphony Hall). Trio Garufa performs classic Argentine tangos from the golden era (1930s-1950s) as well as Argentine Folklore Music (Chacarera, Zamba, Guarania, Gato, and Chamamé) and modern tangos from Piazzolla as well as original compositions and electro-tango. They are the only tango ensemble based in the US to have performed extensively in the Milongas (tango dance clubs) of Buenos Aires. Trio Garufa will offer a one-hour workshop in tango before the show for $5 more. The tango trio includes Guillermo Garcia (Argentina), Sascha Jacobsen (USA), and Adrian Jost (Switzerland).

Go to Health: Beneficial bacteria in your Body:

Microbiologists are excited about recent studies showing that the bacteria in our guts, throat, genital organs and on our skin can have newly discovered beneficial roles in health. We have some 500 different strains of bacteria in our intestinal tract; the average healthy adult carries about 5 pounds of them. From the mouth to the colon, they help us break down and digest our food and allow for its absorption. They also synthesize a range of vitamins, from the B group to vitamin K.

About 70% of our immune system resides in the lining of the gut; signals from good bacteria influence immune cell development and susceptibility to infections and inflammatory diseases. Researchers at the University of Pennsylvania have shown that when mice are treated with antibiotics to reduce numbers of beneficial bacteria, they have an impaired antiviral immune response and delayed clearance of systemic viruses or influenza in the airways. The researchers concluded that signals from beneficial bacteria stimulate immune cells in a way that is optimal for antiviral immunity.. This may be a way that good gut bacteria reduce your susceptibility to colds and flu.

The same researchers also looked at allergic lung inflammation, similar to asthma in humans, and found that mice given antibiotics had higher levels of basophils in their white blood cells, and elevated serum IgE – seen in allergic disease. Researchers at the University of British Columbia found that mice treated with the antibiotic vancomycin reduced the diversity of microbes in the gut and increased the susceptibility of the animals to experimentally induced asthma. They conclude that normal bacterial populations can positively influence the response to allergens in the environment, making inflammation and asthma less likely. The bacterial multitudes in our bodies may have functions never before appreciated.

Antibiotics are life-saving drugs in many situations, including streptococcal throat infections (that can lead to heart valve damage), bacterial meningitis, bacterial pneumonia, urinary tract infections, et al. The purport of this column is not to criticize their use when needed, but to underline the importance of beneficial bacteria in the gut.

Research on the 'microbiome' is a hot topic currently, with exciting implications for human health. Microbiome is defined as the totality of microbes in the body (bacteria, viruses and fungi), their genetic elements and environmental interactions. What you can do right now to keep your microbiome in good shape is to feed your helpful intestinal bacteria the right food. Sugary foods that are low in fiber allow the 'bad' microbes to thrive. Avoid them. Certain foods are known as 'prebiotics' can help our beneficial bacteria. Examples are whole grains, oats, bananas, garlic & onions, artichokes and asparagus. In addition, many people take a 'probiotic' supplement that contains beneficial bacteria, and also eat fermented foods such as yogurt, kefir, and sauerkraut. Make sure the yogurt you buy contains living cultures, and avoid ones that are sweetened – it's better to add fruit yourself. You can buy probiotic capsules at the Bolinas People's store – they have a good selection. Look in the refrigerated section and keep the capsules refrigerated at home to preserve the life of the bacteria therein.

If you take antibiotics for a bacterial infection, it's a good idea to take a probiotic to restore your beneficial bacteria. This may help to prevent serious diarrhea after antibiotic use, which can occur when bad bacteria such as Clostridium difficile take over. Wait at least 2 hours after taking the antibiotic, so it can be absorbed into your bloodstream, before taking the probiotic. If you have asthma, a probiotic supplement might help – talk to your doctor about this.
