Both my college sweetheart and I are originally from St. Louis. In the late '70s, five years after graduating, I moved to the San Francisco Bay Area, where I've lived ever since. About the same time, Bonnie moved to Mobile and has lived across Mobile Bay in Daphne, up the road from Foley ever since. About ten years ago, we had a short series of constant contact dwindle to intermittent. During this time she told me about passing through Foley to her ex's family's Gulf Coast retreat, reminding me it was Stabler's hometown. Thought about her when I heard the news of Snake's passing; why I decided to send you the poem I wrote in his honor. (Revised since earlier submission.)

The Snake
For: Ken Stabler
(12/25/1945-7/8/2015)
The Village Elliott: 7/15

Ken Stabler followed Namath for Bear, Both won titles for 'Bama while there, With Raiders, Snake won the Super Bowl, MVP;
 Earned proud legacy few others share.

First reported "Demise of the Snake," For a while wasn't sure: Real or Fake?
 Then: "Confirmed by his kin: Yes: the Snake shed last skin," Unlike Mark Twain's, report's no mistake.

Coach Madden said, "I'll take the Snake, If game-winning drive Raiders must make;
 Studied playbook all night By juke box flashing light, Always knew, then do, what it would take.

"On-Field, Ken: Kinda 'Cool' you can't fake, While off-field, charming rouge on the make,
 He could run, he could glide,
 But from Death he couldn't hide; Reckon one foe Ken Stabler couldn't take."

RIP: Snake

Thank you,
 Elliott Kolker

Reading With Annie

Many of us may recall our feeling of dread as a child when we were chosen to read aloud in class. But for some students, these moments of dread can develop into a serious and growing problem known as aliteracy: acquiring basic reading skills, but disliking, or even refusing, to read. Because aliteracy usually can be traced to feelings of fear, shyness and embarrassment, the best way to combat the problem is to find a way for children to read in a fun and empowering environment.

The Marin Humane Society's SHARE A Book program works closely with local teachers, reading specialists and librarians to help children improve literacy skills while offering them an opportunity to have fun reading—to dogs! SHARE A Book's human-dog volunteer teams visit schools, libraries, book fairs, after school programs, reading labs and reading bilingual programs.

This summer Librarian Jane Silva at the Bolinas Library is bringing this lovely opportunity to our community. My highly literate dog Annie, who was practically raised at the Bolinas Book Exchange, (and still enjoys riding shotgun in her "Dad" Michael Rafferty's tiny convertible) will be appearing next Saturday the 18th of July, from 11 am to noon.

Dogs are ideal reading companions because they offer unconditional love and acceptance. As opposed to an audience of their peers, children feel comfortable reading to dogs because their fears and limitations dissolve in the process. Additionally, a child who previously lacked self-esteem as a remedial reader is presented with an opportunity to become a "teacher" by explaining what they are reading to their canine partner.

There are also physiological benefits of being with dogs, including lower blood pressure and increased relaxation. In this calm environment, children tend to forget about limitations. It doesn't take long before we see marked improvements in reading.

Before participating in the program, dogs and their humans complete a four-week training class led by a certified instructor from the Marin Humane Society. Here, handlers learn how to use their dogs as literacy mentors. Dogs must be kid- and dog-friendly, excel in basic obedience and have passed a vet health check.

Annie and I have graduated from this program and have been volunteering at Hamilton Elementary School in Novato this past year. We are thrilled to be able to participate in this great program here in our dear Home Town.

Feel free to phone me at -9049 if you want more information, or have specific inquiries.

Remember, as the late great Dr. Seuss says "The more that you read, the more that you'll know; the more that you know, the more places you'll go."

MONDAY MORNING WEEK IN REVIEW 7/13/15 Wrap and Recap from Jennie Pfeiffer

The "big wheel keeps on turning" with comings and goings, births, deaths, weddings, community celebrations and the constant struggle to find a place to park in Bolinas on the weekend – especially when the days are beautiful and there are back-to-back memorials, a wedding celebration, and the Community Center annual membership potluck dinner. I'm thinking some enterprising person might start up a valet parking service for downtown on the weekends.

The celebration of the life of Russ Faure-Brac in the Bolinas Community Center on Saturday was a beautiful event with a house full of people sharing stories of the adventurous life of this dedicated father of two and long time life partner of Anne Sands. Russ spent much of his life working toward peaceful solutions to world conflict. His book TRANSITION TO PEACE, carefully lays out a plan for attaining such a lofty goal. It is available in the library and I recommend it. There were many photos on the walls depicting the various decades of Russ's life, and a computer loop of slides and photos showed the many scenes of a life well lived but over too quickly. I loved StuArt's medley of songs about farewells and the inevitability of death as part of life.

At this same time, there was a gathering in the Downtown Park to honor another recently departed longtime member of the community, Mary Edna Dinneen. She is remembered as: an artist who worked in a variety of media; a lover of animals (the morning braying of the household burro could be heard all across the Mesa); and was known for her sharp wit and intelligence. She was a strong champion of her five children, Ivory, Shelter, Chime, Wonder, and Lilac, who many may remember from their days growing up here in Bolinas, some now with children of their own, presently off pursuing art in the greater world, but gathered together again here on Saturday to honor their mother. Mary Edna's long time life partner from early days in Bolinas was Tony Serra, who spoke eloquently of their life together.

It's difficult to lose those we love, but accepting this final transition to peace and witnessing this return to the stardust of creation is what we do well as a community. Press On Regardless. JP

Runic half-month of Ur commences

The half-month of Ur, primal strength, is a time of collective action, when our power as a society can be best applied to projects for the common good.
It is a good time for beginnings, for this rune is sacred to the Norm Urda, the primal foundation of things, and to the active principle in the shape of Thor, the hammer-wielding thunder god.

secret knowledge of the runes. The rowan is the tree of protection and its wood,
