Physicist Tom Nash, PhD

Tom Nash is now an emeritus scientist at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory, where he spent more than 30 years as an experimental high-energy and astro physicist.

His conversation with Michael Lerner will cover :
The conceptually difficult "Standard Model" and the much in the news search for its final undiscovered prediction, the Higgs Boson (aka the "God" particle)

Stephen Hawkings's beautiful book, The Grand Design, about the structure of the universe and the suggestions that there is a multi-universe, of which ours, The Universe, is just one of a huge number.

The technically heroic search, in which Tom is participating, for gravitational waves, perhaps including some from The Beginning.

The Holiday Luncheon at BCC

The Holiday get-together at the Community Center on Sunday was a big success--well attended, lots of great food, & warm with the fireplace filled with wood.

The Presbyterian church provided sleeping bags and warm socks which were distributed to those who needed them. Jody Angel did a great job organizing this event. Thanks to all who helped and thanks to those who joined us for this joyous event.

Stagecoach south route will extend to Olema

A contingent of West Marin residents convinced the Marin County Board of Supervisors on Monday to fill a service gap that will be left open in January by the elimination of the Stagecoach's coastal route 62, which shuttles passengers from Stinson Beach to Point Reyes, with a northern extension of south route 61 to Olema, beginning next fall.

The reorganized line, which will run from Bolinas up to Olema twice a day for five days a week to connect with route 68 through the San Geronimo Valley, is meant to directly benefit Bolinas and Stinson students commuting to Drake High School in San Anselmo.

It will likely be tested during a monitoring period during the fall semester and run once in the morning and once in the early evening. The board will evaluate the results and decide if the service will be renewed.

Marin Transit officials decided to cancel route 62 starting this January because it serves fewer than 250 people a month and can cost the agency almost $60 per rider. Their recommended proposal had used savings from that cut and others to add four extra round trips to the highly trafficked route 68, but the modification approved on Monday, and its associated service costs, will prevent the addition of one of those trips.

"The main disadvantage [to the extension] is there's not a later round trip in the evening [on route 68]," Amy Van Doren, Marin Transit's director of operations, said. "The latest return trip will be the same."

While transit officials were not pleased with the wrench thrown into their detailed plans to maximize ridership on the Stagecoach, advocates at the meeting were content with the results.

"I'm ecstatic," said Anny Owen Densmore, a Bolinas resident who spoke at the meeting. "A small group of concerned citizens got together from different hamlets and included each other in our process. That was what made the difference."

Owen Densmore, who told supervisors that service through the Olema Valley offers Bolinas residents a connection to the "regional center" of Point Reyes, said that the three-day scheduling on the 62 never provided enough consistency to recruit regular ridership and believed the community could fill the bus with a more regular schedule.

Supervisor Steve Kinsey, who had previously attended a meeting in Bolinas about the changes and motioned to make the modification to the recommended proposal, articulated the tension between conventional performance expectations and local needs. "I certainly understand why you're recommending the one that you are because we are trying to develop our route selections by performance measures and clearly this [reflects] what you expect would be higher ridership as a result," he said. "The flip of that is that there's sort of a life-line quality or a limited access interest that I think we're gonna hear about from Stinson and Bolinas that I'm gonna be encouraging directors to pay close attention to."

Locals also requested support at Monday's meeting for alternative community-based transit programs, like the West Marin Commons ride-sharing program and West Marin Transportation Committee's recent purchase of a van.

Social worker Maria Niggle read a letter from West Marin Commons Director Elizabeth Barnet that "[urged] the Board of Supervisors to support our collaborative and self-help approach which you see represented at the meeting today."

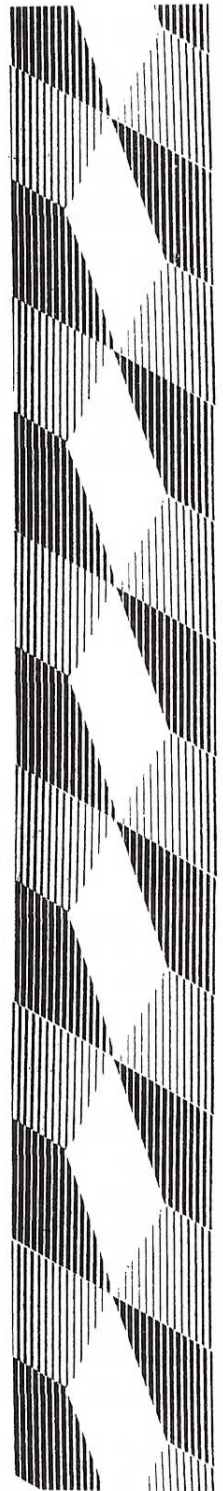

Jack Kramer, a member of the ad hoc West Marin Transportation Committee, which is devoted to fulfilling the transit needs of the elderly, Latino and youth populations, said his organization was in the early stages of developing a van-share and ride-sharing program.

"We in the unincorporated areas of Marin are accustomed to rolling up our sleeves and doing for ourselves," he said. "While this independence has many benefits, we cannot nor should not fund all of our transportation needs through the generous giving of our citizens."

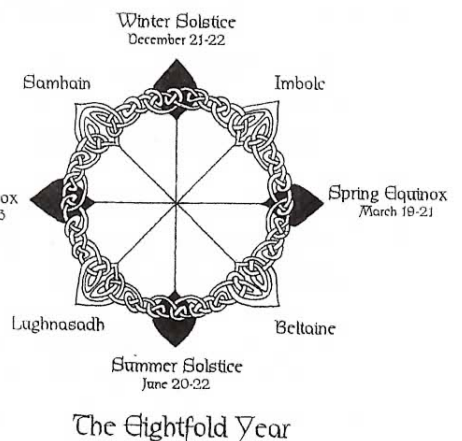

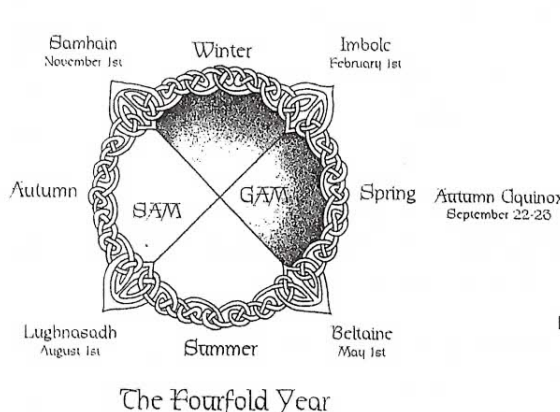

Kinsey expressed interest in helping these grassroots programs in the long-term. "I think that we may find in the future that the best use of our resources would be to partner with an organization in [West Marin] that takes on more responsibility rather than trying to provide it through our Stagecoach service," he said.

Kinsey suggested that the National Park Service could charge for parking in Point Reyes National Seashore to fund more functional West Marin transportation.

Niggle saw the decision to extend the 61 route as an early victory in developing a more robust local transit system. "Right now, it's that Stagecoach line; we don't know when it will be ours," she said. "We have to stick together." — Ryan Jacobs

THREE MORE GREAT THINGS ABOUT THIS PLACE...

- (1) Brilliant orange monarchs fluttering by purple Ichium blossoms.
- (2) The Tidelog, which I'm told is going out of business. I hope that's not true, because I've been using it all the time—an essential guide to the ocean and heavens.
- (3) Festivus, for the rest of us who have Christmas issues. Who'd have thought a single obscure Seinfeld episode would spawn a whole new holiday?

Subject: troops coming home from Iraq: editorial oversight.

Date: Thu, 15 Dec 2011 20:31:04 - 0800

A lamentable oversight of the United States "peace movement" of recent years is its failure to give adequate -- in some areas ANY attention to the relation of International Law <the law of nations, embodied in the U N Charter to the fight for peace. The Charter is a ratified treaty that we have pledged to obey. The law of the Charter clearly forbids nations to start, engage in and wage international conflict without express approval of of the Security Council of the United Nations. The U S State Department acknowledged this by asking for such approval and it was not granted. The clear and gross violation of world law by the attack on Iraq was insufficiently addressed in peace actions of the last decade. It was reprehensible that the press and people's organizations failed to say more than that they were "against" it, without specifying and helping the general population to understand why this and comparable wars, pending and projected, must be resisted as illegal, not merely unwise.

THE INNER CAULDRON RENEWAL

We have arrived at last at the close of the year, a time of endings and new beginnings. At Winter Solstice the seed of light is tightly folded within the bud of darkness. From now on, as the days grow longer, the sun-seed slowly unfurls from this center, through the spring days of Imbolc and Beltaine, to its full flowering at Summer Solstice. At this point it will reach the outermost ring of the year's spiral and begin to contract slowly toward the center once again. Perhaps this is the meaning of the spiral art carved by the ancient ones on the walls at Newgrange, aligned as it is to this most important time of the year. (It is also believed that there may be a hidden passage on the other side of the mound, aligned to the Summer Solstice sunset.)

As we look toward the threshold of a new year, we become more aware of our journey as a spiral that circles around yet continually moves us onward to the next cycle of our soul's evolution. Amid all the busy Christmas preparations, it is important to take some time to tune into the deep, dark womb of the year's midnight, to feel and enjoy the quiet interval that comes when the curtain has gone down over the stage of this year's rich drama and the new play has not yet commenced. (In my experience, a failure to take this "down" time in winter is the real reason behind those cold and flu bugs that make us rest whether we want to or not.)
