GLEANINGS Mary Barror

Someone is playing a flute
 on the banks of the swollen Gomara.
 On the pastureland of Gokula,
 that country of cowherds,
 someone is playing a flute
 that awakens such longing
 a woman is helpless before it.
 Trembling & golden it floats through the afternoon engulfing its victim in raptures of amorousness & desire
 —the housework untouched;
 the heart in utter confusion...

after Chandida
by Steve Kowitz

Behold the archer's skill that leaves the body whole but breaks the heart.

after Utpalavija
by Steve Kowitz

You who have been held to her breasts & cradled
 against her thighs & upon whom she plays
 with such passion & skill
 are indeed to be envied
 O lute
 of that marvelous girl
 with the dark eyes,
 I too,

God knows,
 would make rapturous music,
 after Vacaspali
 by Steve Kowitz

How wonderful it is that nobody need wait a single moment before starting to improve the world.

Anne Frank

The only man who never makes a mistake is the man who never does anything.

Teddy Roosevelt

Laughter

Hilly village lanes,
 Whitewashed sunlit walls,
 Cerulean sea.
 The laughter of children.

No matter where in the world you go, no matter how many languages are spoken, and no matter how many times cultures and governments clash, the laughter of children is universally uplifting. The mirth of adults can be variously jealous, insecure, sadistic, cruel, or absurd, but the sound of playing children evokes the ideal of a simple and pure act. There are no concepts, no ideologies—only the innocent pleasure of life.

We as adults dwell upon our grizzled complexities, our existential anxieties, and our preoccupations with responsibilities. We hear the merriment of children and may sigh over our lost childhoods. Although we can no longer fit into our old clothes and become young again, we can take comfort in the optimism of children. Their rejoicing can gladden us all.

We are too often in a rush for our children to grow up. It is far better for them to fully live each year of their lives. Let them learn what is appropriate to their time, let them play. And when their childhood is spent at adolescence, help them in a gentle transition. Then their laughter will continue to resonate with cheer and hope for us all.

TWO ARTISTS WORKING SIDE BY SIDE TO BEAUTIFY BOLINAS

WHEN ASKED ABOUT PAINTING IN PUBLIC RATHER THAN THE STUDIO, MIKE SHINE SAID "IT'S LIKE THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN LIVE MUSIC AND RECORDED MUSIC."
INDEED, WATCHING JULY DRAW OUT LONG BRUSHSTROKES TO DEPICT SURF AND SHINE CUT IN PSYCHEDELIC LETTERING WAS INSPIRING.
ONE COULD OBSERVE PEOPLE ACTUALLY MAKING ART IN REAL TIME.
NOTHING VIRTUAL ABOUT IT.
TOTALLY REAL.
