Heard It at the Hardware

By Robin Bradford

"You've got a great big dollar sign there where most women have a heart." -Sterling Hayden in The Killing

THE GREAT CAR BATTERY CAPER.

He liked me. I could feel it. Like a poker game when the cards are falling right for you, with a nice little pile of blue and yellow chips in the middle of the table. What I didn't know then was that I wasn't playing him. He was playing me, his deck was marked, and the stakes weren't blue and yellow chips. What hung in the balance was a car battery.

Some things you do, some things you don't. This devil with the angel's smile did something you just don't do: Battery dumping, broad daylight, Bolinas. Now we're going to have to pay to take some schmuck's car battery off our hands?? You know what that is, don't you? It's bad news, real bad.

You heard me right -- a CAR BATTERY. Oh sure, our sign advertises we recycle batteries. It's a service we perform for free for the guys and dolls living in this mixed-up little town we like to call home. But this Johnny Scofflaw must've known he was pulling a fast one, dumpin' a car battery like that right in front of the hardware store. Only a human being with a tiny shred of decency would take the time to bring it to a place that actually takes car batteries, but decency must be something he didn't learn in Boy Scouts.

Yeah, he might've saved a few bucks. You know what bucks are, don't ya? The stuff you never have enough of. The little green paper things with Alexander Hamilton half-smiling right at ya. Men die for it, women act like tramps for it. It causes more trouble in this world than anything, and if you've ever wondered why, here's your answer: because there's just too darn little of it to go around!

Sure, I may sound like a bitter little lady, but it's a bitter little

TODAY'S HEARSAY brought to you by Steve Heilig, June McAdams, and David Cattell.

Time passed. Pina Coladas, walks on the beach in the rain, and nights of solitude, mixed with the fact that the car battery, and the moke, were out of my life, made this quiet little berg halfway liveable once again. And then -- the unthinkable. Of all the nail joints in all the world, he had to walk back into this one.

I gulped, then sputtered, then gulped and sputtered again before deciding to give him a piece of my mind. And friend, there aren't that many pieces left, but I scrambled for each remaining scrap and frittered it away like I had a whole wad buried under a mattress. "L-l-last time I looked, you were a nice g-g-guy."

He grimaced, "Maybe next time you look, I won't be."

"You just keep on talking, honey," I retorted. "I like the way you run me down like that. Like an old battery that can't be jumpstarted!" The battery couldn't be jumped, but he did, nearly out of his skin. I guess I got him good because his face drained, drained like a -- you guessed it -- a battery that needed recycling. "Except we don't recycle car batteries," I screeched. "Never have, never will!"

"I'll be back," he sneered, in a tone reminiscent of a black pool of radioactive fluid opening up at my feet. And like the fool my mother raised me to be, I dove right in, head first, not even thinking about my hair. It was like a whirlpool, a black whirlpool sucking me under. But at least it provided me with a metaphor as he slunk backwards out the door.

"What I like about you is you're rock bottom. I wouldn't expect you to understand this, Johnny, but it's a great comfort for a girl to know she could not possibly sink any lower!"

Some dames who've been around the block even more than I have suggest if I hate car batteries so much, I should get on my knees and pray. Pray that I never run into such an ill-mannered jerk ever again. But as for me, I never pray. Kneeling, you see, bags my nylons. But don't even get me started on that, for that is another story entirely.

FOOD FESTIVAL THANK YOU

Thank you everyone who made the first ever Bolinas Food Festival the fantastic success that it was! So many people new-comers, old timers, young and old Bolinians and other West Marinners came together and created one of the best Community events I personally have ever had a pleasure of participating in.

Thank you to all the FANTASTIC VOLUNTEERS who worked hard, some double or triple shifts, to make this festival possible.

Thank you VENDORS who worked hard creating and offering delicious and beautiful foods and crafts to nourish and feed our village.

Thank you Bolinas farms: Star Route Farms, La Tercera, Fresh Run Farms, Paradise Valley & Gospel Flats for the most amazing donated vegetables & bread for our Community Farm stand - people keep telling me we should have this happen every week...

Thank you to the awesome bands who ROCKED downtown Bolinas on Saturday: Bo-Stin Dub Squad, Black Water Gold, This Old Earthquake, Laa di daa di daa & Molly Maguire and kids. Bolinas sure has talent!

A big thank you to our guest food demo speakers: Medea Leones and the Sprout Seed Library, John Glavis with Bo Tierra Gardens, Leroux Prater with Saltwater Oyster Depot, Sommelier Rosanne Lavoy & Chef Dave Cook from the Coast Café. And thank you Nate Siedman for emcee'ing our event; keep your calendar clear, you are hired for next year too!

THANK YOU FOR THE FOOD: pie bakers, Bill Niman, Heather Clapp, Bolinas farmers, Keith Huntley, Melissa & Kanoa, Coast Café, Saltwater Oyster Depot, Bolinas Peoples' Store, also for letting the BCC use the parking lot all day!

Thank you Sean Thackrey and Kater Murch for the superb wine, Mark Butler for the apples & press, Kyra Epstein for Gaia iced tea and Curly & George for the lemonade. Talk about keeping it local!

Thank you Barb & Five Brooks for the pony rides in the park...yikes, we might've forgotten a pile of poop, wups... I'll check it in the morning! Thank you Mesa Park for offering the new beautiful park for the event. Thank you Mick for organizing games, Ian Maclaird for potato stamping, Bolinas Children's' Center for letting us use your bikes, Bolinas School for the hula-hoops & Stinson Beach Preschool for crafts, tables & chairs. It was the best Kid Zone ever!

The biggest thank you goes to June and Alex Kleider for the beautiful $5,000 Imperial stove they are donating to the Bolinas Community Center - the stove that sparked the festival. Hopefully soon the funds will come together to actual install it!

And last, but not least, a humongous enormous stupendous thank you to the five ladies who helped make this whole festival materialize: Serita Basilio-Lewis with Food for Families, Becka Trivelpiece with Wild Onion Catering, Tania Kleider with A Humble Kitchen, Baraka Broek with Baraka's Chocolates and Randi Arnold the BCC Development Director and most fantastic colleague one could wish for - you ladies ROCK!

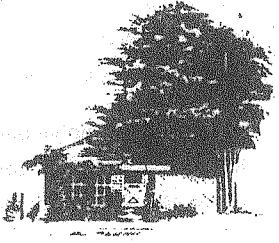

Many other people and businesses contributed to make the day happen - you all know who you are, thank you!

Sincerely,
Lia Sabbatini

MYSTERY SOLVED HERO REVEALED

Jeff Clapp is the name of the man who together with an unnamed surfer saved Billy from the pit bull by the surfer's hitting him with a big stick on the beach. Jeff later saw woman in a car searching for a run away pit bull and told her of the vicious attack. He believes that she was an out of townner.

This is the second time Billy was attacked; EJ's awful young pit bull was the first. So here is the solution. KEEP YOUR PIT BULLS ON A LEASH AT ALL TIMES. Or maybe just keep them at home where their owners will all testify that they are all sweet pussycats. Yeah, right.

Measure E: YES. Authorizes a tax of $49 per improved parcel per year in Bolinas to keep Mesa Park maintained and functioning. The park is a vital community asset in an area where there's little else in the way of facilities for active athletics. Agreeing to chip in $4.08 per month per parcel to renew this tax seems reasonable and quite a good bargain.

Outstanding Unity in Community

Bolinas smiled from ear to ear last Saturday! It was a sweeping grin, spreading delightedly all across its new downtown face. The Community Center, the Plaza, and THE Park were connected and enjoyed and thoroughly inhabited. Everybody helped, and everybody had a good time.

This first local source Food Festival, benefiting the CC kitchen, was a special high point in our long tradition of truly great community gatherings. We cross-pollinated like mad in old and new connections, folks and families talked and played and danced and sang, clustering and tasting and eating and humming along, nourished in countless ways. Hearts were glad and tummies were full and memories are rich, and we still feel the afterglow. Its a keeper!

PRESCRIBED FIRE UPDATE

The National Weather Service forecasts near record high temperatures possible for Wednesday and Thursday.

Due to warmer weather with low relative humidity, burning in the Olema Valley is cancelled again this week.

The Strain Hill Prescribed Fire has been tentatively re-scheduled for next Tuesday, October 23.

While burning is on hold, the fuels crew will return to a large bishop pine thinning project in the Bayview Fire Road area at Point Reyes National Seashore.

Marin History Watch: Kindling cargo from Bolinas

Marin History Museum
Posted 10/16/2012 10:20:00 AM marinij.com

According to the Oct. 19, 1868, San Francisco Daily Evening Bulletin, 1,000 cords of wood were for sale on the Bolinas waterfront. Bolinas was a big producer of firewood for San Francisco; between 1855 and 1880, an estimated half million cords were lumbered in Bolinas forests. It was such a profitable business that as many as 10 schooners were employed at one time to haul firewood into the city. (Pictured: A passenger and freight ship sails along the coast near Bolinas in 1890s.) And then there was the Continental, a 77-foot steamer built by Bolinas Navigation Co. to take advantage of the thriving wood trade. Unfortunately, the ship itself didn't thrive — its propellers continually broke in shallow waters. Later sold, it now rests in Humboldt Bay.

History Watch is provided by the Marin History Museum, www.marinhistory.org, and appears Tuesday in the Generations section. Images included in History Watch are available for purchase by calling 362-0770 or by email at photoservices@marinhistory.org.

Our blowup doll prefers flatbeds

My heart goes out to Kira, the Bolinas resident who was hassled (terrorized, really) by an impatient driver in a Trader Joe's parking lot ["Heroes&Zeros," Sept. 28].

I don't like to generalize, but it seems to me that Road Yahoos (male and female) seem to abound hereabouts. My friend Wendy, who is also a single woman of a certain age, devised a really clever ploy after one too many impatient drivers leaned on their horns, yelled, and/or flipped her the bird in traffic. She purchased a blow-up guy (she found it him on Sky Mall), named him Amos. Amos sits next to her in the front seat of her Honda. It seems to work: she hasn't been harassed for quite some while.

REQUIEM AT STINSON BEACH

The West Marin Chamber Singers will be giving their final performance of Gabriel Fauré's Requiem
this Sunday, Oct. 21st at 7:00 pm at the Stinson Beach Community Center. The suggested donation is $5-20.
Everyone is welcome.

We are offering the evening's performance to the spirits and memory of those souls who have departed
--our friends, family and community.

SEEKING SPONSORS

We are seeking $10 sponsors for this event. For that $10, you will not only have our GRATITUDE (and the good feelings that come from knowing you are supporting a worthy cause), but you will have your name listed in the program as a sponsor. You will also have the choice to use that space in the program to honor and remember someone who has passed. For example, the sponsorship could be listed as "in memory of...". If you have more than one person to honor, you may wish to buy more than one sponsorship.

To sponsor this event, please contact Stacey at 868-2004 or staceyhenderson@compuserve.com
by 5pm on Saturday, 10/20.

FROM VIOKISA

THE BOLINAS VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT puts on a great FIRE SAFTY DAY this Sunday
October 21. As part of that day I have been leading a Sign Clinic for years and will do so again. I started it so people could put house numbers on their homes to direct the emergency response people and save valuable time. Please come if this applies to you it is free ,fun, and productive. Please try to include this in your weekend as there are great plans afoot.
