The Saga of the Doors

Replacing the doors on the Freebox had been on my agenda for a very long time. The doors were old and falling apart and never fully recovered after Rockstar tried to break into the Freebox "because Rick Klaes told him to."

The Hearsay classified ad "Wanted: two matching doors for Freebox" was in the Hearsay for over a year, maybe two years. Ed Pohlman responded to the ad and offered me a beautiful pair of French doors that he had from a remodel. The doors still had their astragal. (look it up if you don't know what an astragal is)

It was a beautiful vision: the pristine white French doors with 8 panes each would lend a quiet dignity and refinement to the Freebox. People would no longer leave trash and bric a brac. They'd leave stuff that was more upscale in keeping with the French doors..

But that idea was nixed because of the many panes of glass that could be — probably would be — broken.

Couple of weeks ago I stopped at Fairfax Lumber and decided to check out the Away Station in the back. The Away Station sold all kinds of recycled building materials, and they had a bunch of second hand doors that could be used for the Freebox. But I was hesitant.

"Better make your decision soon." Otis told me at the Away Station. "We're closing for good in a week. Insurance is driving us out of business."

"Where's all the stuff gonna go?"

"The landfill probably."
Two doors or not do doors — there was an urgency to the project. The day before the Away Station closed I drove over to Fairfax and picked out 2 doors that looked like a matched pair.

(Later I found out that one was an inch shorter than the other)

Now I had the doors I had to get them installed. I made a few inquiries, but everybody was busy with real money-making jobs and the weather wasn't cooperating. A week went by while I tried to figure out how to get the doors hung.

Yesterday, rain was forecast for all day. When I awoke I resolved, "One thing I'm not going to do today is replace the doors on the Freebox."

But my rebellious spirit lept to the fore and the rain held off. Ralph offered to help, Kevin too. We unscrewed the old doors from their hinges and screwed the new doors to the old hinges.

With a little trimming the doors fit the old doorway.

After the doors were hung I stepped back to check out the look. The Freebox's new doors were gorgeous. They had that distinctive golden-orange glow of solid Douglas Fir. They looked solid and ready for years of Freebox fashion.

To me it was a vision of renewal. That funky town tradition, the Freebox, had new doors. The tradition would live on.

That funky town tradition, the Freebox, had new doors. The tradition would live on.

I remembered William Blake's famous line;

If the doors of perception were cleansed every thing would appear to man as it is, Infinite.

and I paraphrased the line:

If the doors of the Freebox were rebuilt evreything would appear to all as an unexpected miracle.

Thank you, StuArt

On Saturday Eric & Suzy Thompson played Cajun & Creole music. Sponsored by the Library the music coincided with the One Book One Marin program which discussed Strangers in Their Own Land: Anger and Mourning of the American Right, by renowned Berkeley sociologist Arlie Russell Hochschild and a finalist for the 2016 National Book Award, is the 2108 One Book One Marin selection. It is a compelling read, exploring the division between the political left and right in the United States. Who are the members of the Tea Party in Louisiana? Why do they continue to vote for policies that ultimately harm them? Arlie Hochschild left her liberal enclave, traveled to Louisiana, talked to members of the Tea Party and listened to their stories. This is her report back.

- Being a Kid in Old West Marin
03/25/2018 - 4:00pm to 5:30pm
"Being a Kid in Old West Marin"

Dewey Livingston, West Marin's historian for more than 30 years, presents the second in a series of slide shows featuring historical photographs and recollections of the Point Reyes and Tomales Bay area. Dewey now takes us into the life of children in West Marin's past, looking at home life, school, play and chores. The program, sponsored by the Jack Mason Museum of West Marin History, is a fundraiser for Dewey's upcoming book about the history of the Point Reyes Peninsula, Tomales Bay and the local communities. Bring your kids to this one! Free, with donations gladly accepted.

03/25/2018 - 7:30pm to 9:00pm
Making Documentaries
John Korty

Oscar-winning filmmaker will discuss "true-life" films, including issues like choosing subjects, working alone or with a crew, being neutral or partisan, deciding when to turn off the camera. Clips from several films will be shown.

All tickets $20 at the door.

John Korty made his first documentary on a Quaker vigil at the Pentagon in 1961, and it was shown at 11 international film festivals. He won an Oscar in 1978 for his film, WHO ARE THE DEBOLTS? His most recent film MIRACLE IN A BOX, focused on piano craftsmanship.

Rodoni's Office Hours

by StuArt

Dennis Rodoni, our county supervisor, held an open meeting at the Community Center on Wednesday to listen to the concerns of his constituency.

Vacation rentals like airbnb, vehicle habitation and affordable housing were among the concerns of the citizenry. Dennis answered questions from the audience about each topic of concern.

He spoke about each topic in turn as he answered questions. A resident of Olema, Dennis had a West Marin vibe that was reassuring. He talked about addressing the concerns with proposed measures like the 5% increase in the Transit Occupancy Tax. That revenue would be specifically earmarked for West Marin.

He mentioned a pilot program for Bolinas that would address the problem of unoccupied vacation rentals. But he also spoke about the opposing forces of vested interests and the "papal authority" of the Coastal Commission.

Dennis advocated a slow but steady approach to enforcement. But as to speeding on Horseshoe Hill Road. Dennis said that the road has been posted and is "radar ready" In other words:

DO NOT SPEED ON HORSESHOE HILL ROAD

There was a good turnout for Dennis Rodoni's office hours at the Community Center. It was an informative and productive town meeting

"This is a town that still gives a sh*t," a friend remarked about the full house.

Indeed, and likewise it was good to see that our County Supervisor also gave a sh*t and cared enough to listen in person to the concerns of the citizenry.

Thank you, Dennis

We're all in for West Marin
