SHOCKER!: LOST SAILING BILLIONAIRE BUYS BUCOLIC BURG!

Bolinas, CA – Denizens of this bucolic coastal burg were amazed today to find that this week's historic America's Cup sailing race had inadvertently been relocated to their town from San Francisco Bay – and that their town had been purchased by one of the sailors. The race was apparently a victim of Fogust – "We seem to have taken a wrong turn somewhere, and wound up outside the Golden Gate and then getting sucked into this mysterious lagoon and getting mired in muck," lamented a boat captain who gave his name as Skipper. "I mean, it's not like there were a lot of signs to follow. But we found a little dock, and I spotted a shining white tent city on a hill, where the streets are said to not be paved with gold but named after dogs, and walked towards that, but there was an old saloon on the way and I got stuck there too, and then a park-with-no-name where somebody in tie-dye was offering special cookies - 'first one's free', she said - and next thing I know I'm sitting here in the park for hours with these two dogs with dreadlocks."

Skipper's secret service guards stood nearby, looking perplexed as they attempted to decode any secret messages in something called "Measure G." A subtle hint of the perfume of compost and sewage wafted overhead. "Occupy Bolinas!" barked the dogs in unison. "Free biscuits for pups and free chai for humans!"

Skipper gazed up at some murals and reflected, "Carpe diem! Seize the day, man! You know, I think I'd like to socially-acknowledge this town. In fact, I'd like to buy it – it's even cooler than Hawaii. I'd turn it into some kind of adult summer camp. Too bad it's not an island!"

There was a moment of uneasy silence, and then one of the dogs whispered to the other. "It's not?"

What If Charlie Surfed?

by StuArt

Last night was Community Night at the Community Center, and it was fun to eat pizza and watch a surf movie together.

The film "Sea for Yourself" was made in the 70's and the hairstyles and car designs were pure vintage. The surf boards were old style too. There were no triple fin thrust-ers.

The sound track was filled with obscure, vintage rock and roll from the 70's. There was a Jimi Hendrix cut that I'd never heard before. Jimi was singing a bluesy vamp about a train a'comin'.

The music was great and it was mesmerizing to watch clip after clip of surfers scooting across waves. Most of the surfing took place in California and Hawaii, but surfing in other parts of the world was also shown. At the beginning there was a long piece that chronicled a surfing safari to France.

I thought about the beauty and healing grace of surfing while I watched clips from around the world. I remembered the scene in Apocalypse Now where Robert Duvall orders a soldier to surf during combat in Vietnam.

"Charlie doesn't surf." Duvall gloats.

But what if Charlie surfed?

-Addendum: as suspected, Bolinas appeared in the film - well, from a distance, in a shot of the long-defunct 1970s surf-and-bongos scene at SF's Ocean Beach! - Steve Heilig

i love this town. it is as quirky as it is beautiful, with the serenity of a sleepy coastal hamlet and the soul of a tortured artist. stray dogs roam the streets, multimillionaires reside side-by-side artists living in squalor, and the afternoon light is something from a tangerine dream.

we're renting the bolinas gallery for the month of august, so dan's fillmore work is currently installed at the little art space next door to the museum. this weekend we're staying at my friend mette's, who graciously offered us her beach house on the "big mesa."

the kids love it here, too. they cruise in and out of the gallery on the razor scooter and skoot bike, having navigated "downtown" in less than 10 minutes. it's like an edgy norman rockwell painting — kids roaming free on their wheels in a quaint town of clapboard buildings, tourists and townies drifting in and out of the gallery, the occasional surfer, old hippie, or local freak passing by, and when i say freaks — in bolinas, they are a special kind of breed..

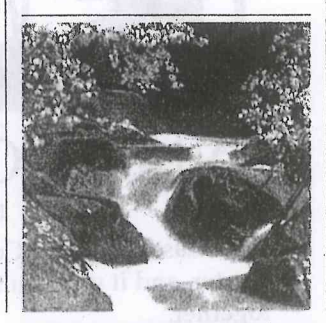

our first weekend here, for the opening night of the show, dan and i spent the night at smiley's schooner saloon and hotel, the local bar that rents out modest but tidy rooms. i've always wanted to stay there, having been a patron of smiley's for years when my friend, painter peter lee lived down the street.

tonight, while everyone was sleeping, i sat outside under the stars and listened to the funky strains of swoop unit, a band my friend chris jordan used to play with, drift up from the saloon. when they finished, i could hear faint hoots and hollers of the beach partiers below, the tinkling of wind chimes, and the surf.

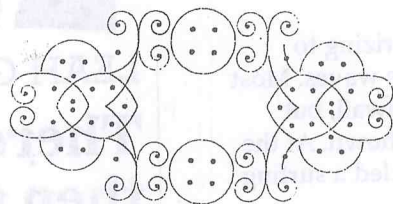

serenity. with an edge.

Bolinas

Post Office established 1863

Bolinas is one of Marin's oldest towns, with a rollicking past.

In 1850 Bolinas was the biggest and busiest place in the county. Of the 323 inhabitants counted that year in the first U. S. census of Marin, two-thirds were in Bolinas Township. They were mostly men busy cutting down the big trees, milling the logs and shipping the lumber to San Francisco—much of it on schooners built right here.

Before the arrival of the loggers and their noisy saws, Bolinas was the quiet Mexican Rancho las Baulenes (a name probably of Indian origin.) Two former soldiers, Rafael Garcia in 1836 and Gregorio Briones ten years later, raised cattle for hides and tallow and enjoyed the leisurely life of the day. More cattle were brought in after lumbering ended, dairy cattle this time, and dairy ranching flourished—but today there are no more dairy ranches at Bolinas.

Stagecoaches began clattering in regularly during the 1870's to connect Bolinas and its sheltered beach with the towns on the other side of the mountain. Starting in the early 1880's, summer homes could be built in a subdivision laid out near the beach by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Waterhouse. Today the original houses are still there together with newer homes.

Expansion to the mesas or plateaus above the town proper began in 1909 with a subdivision on what is called the little mesa, above Brighton Avenue and Wharf Road. The biggest subdivision was in 1927 on the big mesa: more than 5,400 lots on 300 acres. The 20 x 100-foot lots sold for $69.50 apiece to persons who subscribed to the San Francisco Bulletin.

MORE on the Bolinas Store Mural Project

I figure that refurbishing the downtown store wall will cost around $2000, maybe less. Time and materials have been donated but we need some money to pay the fantastic wall painters. Please make tax-deductible donations to The Bolinas Community Center (attention: Randi Arnold, Downtown Mural Project). Send checks to the Bolinas Community Center, P.O. Box 122. It is extremely important to write on the check or add a note to say it is for the Downtown Mural project. They serve many projects so let's help them keep it straight.

Think of your donation as an investment in the future since the last mural lasted 14 years! AND, it will be really nice to sit in the Park and see the fresh wall. Any amount will help. Your donations will be appreciated and your contribution will be acknowledged.

Thanks, in advance,

The Website Has Changed

<http://hearsaynews.org>

TODAY'S HEARSAY and CURRENT ARCHIVES are now password-protected and available only to (you know who you are) subscribers. The rest of the website is free.

Current subscribers will be emailed the new password notification as soon as TODAY'S HEARSAY has been posted. A single or family subscription is approximately $1.00 per week, or about $50 per year, sliding scale. Scholarships are available. Contact hearsaynews@yahoo.com. I have a record of when each person signed up and will remind you when your subscription is about to lapse. Thanks for supporting the Bolinas Hearsay News Online. Everyone is a reporter!
